Geo-Quiz

Spilyay felt that no one could identify the last geo-quiz, so out he went to find this shot. If you have an idea where this is located, just give us a call at 553-1644 or drop by our office. By the way, the last geo-quiz was near the Shaker Church on the right hand side of the road.

Forest service moves to improve involvement

Formation of a staff position in the office of the Regional Forester of the Forest Service to improve public involvement in decision-making in the Pacific Northwest was announced today by Regional Forester R.E. Worthington.

Worthington said the post will be filled by Robert J. Chadwick, now Forest Supervisor of the Winema National Forest, Klamath Falls, effective February 8.

"One important task managers in the Forest Service face today is to search for common ground, or at least mutually agreeable was to come as close as possible to a consensus with our various publics," Worthington said.

"We need to do away with, or at least reduce, the polarization among these various publics. We must do this, if for no other reason, so that we can get on with solving our important natural resource problems. We need to challenge groups which have been traditionally polarized to look again at their roles. We must search for common ground for a consensus. We can only do this with the close participation of the great numbers of our public. I am establishing this staff position to facilitate this process."

In carrying out this assignment, Chadwick will work on improved public access to the decision-making process on specific Reginal issues, Worthington said.

Chadwick's successor at Klamath Falls has not been chosen. Chadwick has been forest supervisor since September 1973, moving to the post from Barlow district ranger on the Mt. Hood National Forest.

He is a 1958 graduate of the University of New Hampshire and worked on the Wenatchee National Forest from 1958 to 1964. He then worked on the La Grande district of the Wallowa-Wintman National Forest before being named district ranger at Dufur in 1967.

New phone directories are out

PNB Manager Glenn Kennedy says there's been a major change in numbers for customers doing business with the company. Special telephone numbers for business and residence customers are listed this year on Call Guide page 2.

For the handicapped the Madras/Warm Springs directory features a special telephone number for Teletypewriter (TTY) Assistance for the Deaf. "Customers who are deaf and use TTY's to communicate over the phone can use two toll free numbers for doing business with us," Kennedy says. "One number connects the deaf customer's TTY with a company teletypewriter for taking care of business office questions such as billing. A second toll-free "800" number accesses a 24 hour number for operator services, directory assistance and repair service."

Wheelchair-bound customers who are unfamiliar with PNB's PhoneCenter Store at NW Wall and Newport (in Bend) need not wonder if there's easy wheelchair access there. Kennedy says a universal wheelchair access symbol has been added to the map on Call Guide page 2 indicating wheelchair access at the store's location.

There's also a new Call Guide section for placing international calls. The guide includes dialing instructions, costs of sample calls to other countries and dialing codes for 73 foreign countries and Vatican City.

To no one's surprise, the new Madras/Warm Springs book is also bigger than its predecessor. There are 24 more pages and nearly 11-hundred more alphabetical listings.

Mail delivery of the book begins in Madras/Warm Springs and Prineville on January 19 followed by Bend on January 20, Kennedy says.

Howlak Tichum Lloyd Melvin Eder

Lloyd Melvin Eder, born in Poplar, Montana on February 6, 1926, passed away at Mt. View Hospital in Madras on January 1, 1981.

He was married to Bessie McKinley, Warm Springs, who survives. Other survivors include a son, Melvin P. Eder, Phoenix, Arizona; two daughters, Marlene Jo Eder, Phoenix, Arizona, and Shirley Ann Smith, Warm Springs; two brothers, Philip John and Earl Eder, both of Gainesville, Georgia; and one sister, Pearl White of Arizona.

Dressing ceremonies were done Monday, January 5 with Nelson Wallulatum officiating. Overnight tribal ceremonies were held at the Simnasho Longhouse.

Burial was at the Red Lake Cemetery on January 6.

Murray "Spunky" Kalama, right, didn't have a chance to get away from this solid punch thrown by Curtis Gensaw of the Gensaw Boxing club. The hit knocked Spunky to the mat for the full count but wasn't considered a KO.
