Boxers do well in tourney

Five boxing clubs met at Hood River on May 31 including the Warm Springs boxing club. Coach Gerald Smith said, "All the boxers boxed good."

Corey Scott, in the 10-11 year, 60-pound division, defeated Wayne DeVeechi of Vancouver, Washington.

Reynolds Allen, a 65 pounder in the 10-11 year group, fought in the 70 pound weight class against Brad Reynolds of Bend. Reynolds wanted a rematch with Allen as Allen was scheduled to box someone else. Allen stopped Reynolds in the third round with a right hook to the body. He slipped Reynolds' right jab and hooked him.

Eighty-five pound Sheldon Sutterlee defeated Mitch Itebert of Vancouver.

Guy Herkshan, 14/15 year, 132 pound division, was scheduled to box Luke Talkington, 139 pounds, of Hood River. Luke didn't show up so Herkshan won on a walkover.

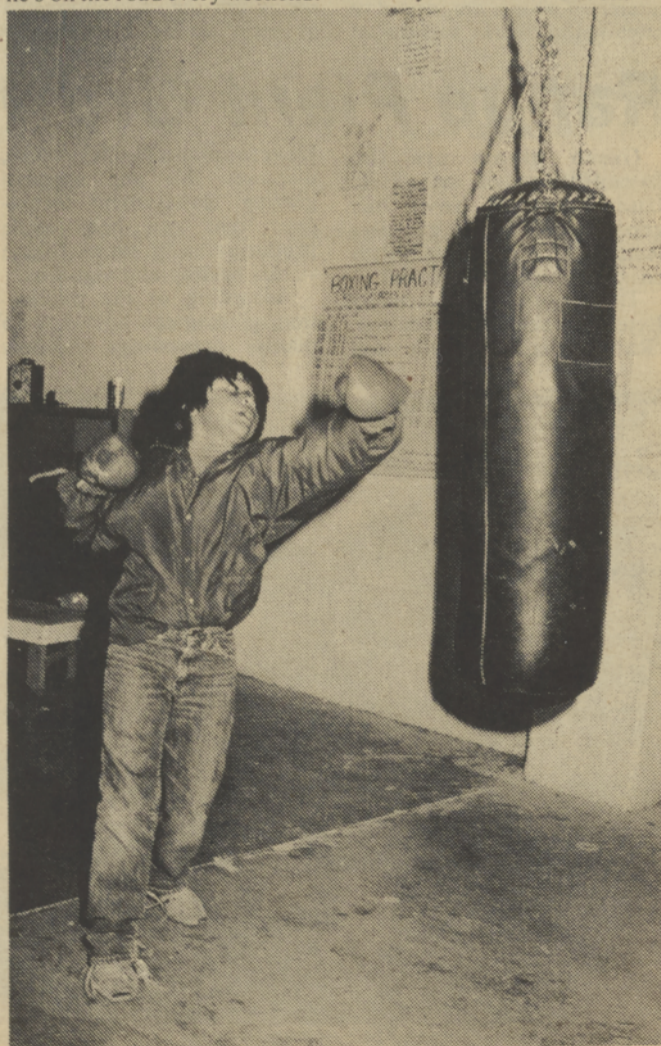

Five year-old, 50 pound Lonnie Smith went to Hood River hoping he could get a bout. He was scheduled to box but his match was cancelled, according to coach Smith.

Ron Governor went along as assistant coach.

Gerald Smith had at one time resigned his position as boxing coach but after a week-and-a-half he said, "I was going bananas thinking about boxing." His volunteer work gets pretty hectic, he says, when he's on the road every weekend.

But he finds reward in assisting the boys who want to box.
