Legislation improves benefits for Vets

By Denny Smith
U.S. Congressman

(Washington, D.C.) During the second week of November, Americans proudly recognize and pay tribute to those brave men and women who have served their country in time of need. As we pause to reflect on the great sacrifices made by so many, I would like to share with you some of the legislation approved by the 97th Congress designed to help veterans.

On October 2, legislation I co-sponsored was approved by my colleagues in the House. That legislation provides an 11.2 percent average annual cost-of-living increase in disability payments for veterans with service-connected disabilities.

This legislation also increases the maximum grant for disabled veterans who need automobile adaptations from $3,800 to $4,400 and increases the grant for housing adaptations from $30,000 to $32,500.

By a unanimous vote, the House of Representatives approved a comprehensive package of veterans benefits in June. That package is now awaiting final passage by the Senate, which is expected.

This package, when passed and signed by the president, will extend the readjustment counseling program for Vietnam-era veterans for three additional years, and will require the V.A. to study a number of health problems of Vietnam veterans.

The measure requires the Administrator to operate and maintain a combined total of 90,000 hospital and nursing beds, and to maintain the availability of such additional beds and facilities as are necessary to fulfill the Administrator's contingency responsibility regarding assistance to the Defense Department.

While providing vital services to veterans is a commitment the government must meet, Congress must also ensure that those currently serving in the military are properly treated.

Recently, President Reagan signed legislation into law granting pay raises of 10 to 17 percent for the nation's two million men and women in the armed forces.

The largest raises, 17 percent, will go to senior sergeants and non-commissioned officers. Officers will get across-the-board raises of 14.3 percent.

One of the problems faced by the active military is holding onto middle-level servicemen and women who are well trained, but are underpaid. Often after receiving valuable training in the military, these people leave the service to pursue careers in the private sector. The pay increase is designed to provide an incentive for more qualified men and women to stay in the military and should, in the long run, help hold down the costs of a strong national defense by reducing the training costs for new people.
