Letters to the editor

Experience was valuable, Thanks for the support

To the Editor,

I'd like to publicly thank the following individuals and organizations for their support, enabling me to participate in the 1981 Indian Nationals Finals Rodeo in Albuquerque, New Mexico, November 19-22:

- Warm Springs Tribal Council
- Warm Springs Barrel Racing Association
- Mr. & Mrs. Alfred Smith Jr.
- Herb Graybael & Earlyne
- Mike & Max Clements
- Ray & Irene Wells
- Carroll & Deanna Shadley
- Bill Walker
- Kenny & Frances Allen
- Byron & Evaline Patt

I didn't fare as well as desired. But this is par for the course, considering the "greenness" of my horse and the effect the capacity crowd and surroundings had on him. This was actually his first pressure competition and his first long distance trip out of Sidwalter Flat. We did, however, place third in the final go.

Hopefully we will be heading back to the INFR again, with more experience under the belt and "horse sense" under the saddle.

Again, thanks for the monetary assistance from all of you folks listed, and a special thanks to my family for the moral support before, during and after.

Reader offers praise, poem

To whom it may concern,

I am writing to inform you about a small matter which will take very little effort on your part to correct. This matter concerns my present mailing address. I would like to inform you that there have been delays and mix ups in getting my paper to me because of the very my address is listed.

So to avoid any further mix ups I would like to inform you that my mail no longer has to come to me in c/o anybody but can be mailed to me direct at the address listed.

I look forward to receiving future copies of Spilyay Tymoo. I like reading Spilyay Tymoo because the paper helps whats happening on my home reservation and place of birth. I think the staff of Spilyay Tymoo is doing a very good job in keeping the people informed. Keep it up.

In closing I would like to offer this poem and would appreciate it if you would set aside a small space in one of the future copies of Spilyay Tymoo and print it because I feel it does a little bit to inform people about what's happening with a lot of young Indians today. The little of this poem is To the White Man but it can be to anybody.

To the White Man

I am a thing of the past,
I am an old stone arrowhead,
I am an old broken teepee pole,

I am the tracks,
still following old buffalo trails,
I am a war cry, which died last night and cannot be heard today.

But,
though I read about the past, and though I admire old stone arrowheads,
and old broken teepee poles, my tracks have long since stopped following the dead buffaloes trails,
I walk these lonely cement creek beds, among these mighty canyon walls,
and I am searching for my war cry once again

Danish girl seeks a penpal

I am a Danish student and I would like to have an Indian penpal. I am very interested in Indians and some weeks ago I wrote a letter to the American Embassy in Denmark. I asked for some information on Indians in America, and I received book-lists and other information.

Some days ago I also received a letter from the Bureau of Indian Affairs in Washington. They gave me some good information too, e.g. a map over the reservation in America. On the back of that map I found your address.

I hope that somebody will write a letter to me, so that we not only can be friends, but also discuss the Indians' problems. It doesn't matter how old you are; I wouldn't mind writing a letter to a 70 year old person, as long as he/she has the same hope as I have: That the Indians some day will have better conditions in their reservations.

Just so that you know: I'm almost 16 and I'm a girl.

Sincerely yours,

Helle Hauge Mollgaard

Missing Names

The names of two men, Marvin Ike and Hamilton Greeley, were inadvertently left off the list of veterans who served our country during wartime. They also served and should have been listed with the others in our last issue.

Note of Thanks

We would like to thank all of those friends and relatives who attended our 21st birthdays dinner held on November 8.
