Court News

Massad pleads guilty

Michael Massad pleaded guilty to a charge of second degree burglary in Portland Federal Court before U.S. District Judge James M. Burns on January 4.

Massad had been indicted by a federal grand jury on October 20, 1981 following an investigation by the FBI and Warm Springs Police in October. Massad was taken into custody October 19 at the Gift Shop/Information Center by Warm Springs Police in the evening hours. The police had arrived upon the scene of a burglary and found Massad at the scene.

Judge Burns ordered a presentence investigation and set sentencing for February 8, 1982.

Stacona's parole revoked

Following an alleged incident at the Rainbow Market on December 28, 1981, Chris Stacona, age 25, was arrested and lodged at the Jefferson County Jail, according to Assistant District Attorney Craig Childress.

Childress stated the incident allegedly occurred in the evening hours. Stacona was reported to have been in a fight at the Rainbow Market and was asked to leave by an employee of the market. Stacona left, returned with a rifle and threatened the employee. Stacona was then reported to have left the area. He was picked up by the Warm Springs Police Department and held by the Jefferson County Sheriff's Department. He was then transported to the county jail.

Stacona was on parole from Oregon State Corrections after serving 5 years for robbery in the first degree.

Stacona's parole has been revoked until after the present charge of menacing, a class A misdemeanor, goes to court. Childress added, "Stacona will probably lose his parole and have to serve the remainder of his previous sentence."

A trial date has not been set at this time.

Warren Wallulatum sentenced

Following a presentence investigation, U.S. District Judge James Burns sentenced Warren Wallulatum to three years in a federal prison.

Wallulatum was found guilty of involuntary manslaughter by a federal jury in December.

He was charged in connection with the August 16, 1980 death of Sally Rhoan. Miss Rhoan died as the result of a one-car accident. Wallulatum was identified as the driver of the car.

Tax forms explained—bring yours

A different approach will be applied during the first of two tax workshop sessions scheduled for January 21 and 22 at the Warm Springs Adult Learning Center located in the Community Center building. An educational session will be held the first evening during which time tax payers can learn how to fill out their own short tax forms. The majority of the tax forms have been the short form.

Lorraine Bruner of Tax Minimizers in Redmond will be going through the tax forms step by step. Many people may be able to complete their forms that night.

The original purpose of the tax workshops sponsored by the Confederated Tribes "was to take the fog out of tax returns," according to Adult Learning Center instructor Reba Powell. This Thursday night workshop will be concerned with teaching people how to do the tax forms rather than having Certified Public Accountants come in and do the forms for individuals at a high cost. "All people who want to have help with their taxes should come to the workshop," Powell emphasized.

Friday, January 22 is reserved for individual help with tax forms. Assistance will be provided to complete forms begun Thursday night and to work on long tax forms. Those who attended the Thursday night session needing further assistance will be given priority for appointments on Friday.

For further information on the tax workshops contact Reba Powell at the Adult Learning Center, 553-1428.

Victor Smith sentenced

Victor Smith Sr., 40, was sentenced in federal court by U.S. District Judge J. Redden to three years imprisonment following the conviction in December of involuntary manslaughter.

Smith had been convicted in the death of his wife Margie Danzuka Smith which occurred June 19, 1981.

Judge Redden ordered sentence to begin in February at which time Smith will voluntarily surrender himself to federal authorities.
