Chopper flies potties in

The new starter-homes, developed by the construction department, incorporate only the necessities in plumbing, heating and construction techniques, it was learned recently.

This "bathroom" is being flown in to the new Wolfe Point Subdivision. It will be dropped into position in back of one of the homes, now under construction.

Asked why regular bathrooms aren't being included in the starter-homes, a secret tribal source said, "Frankly, it's saving the Tribes a lot of money." He added that, because the potties are portable, the new homeowner will have flexibility in the design of his or her floorplan.

Potential home-buyers are not making any moves at this time. Apparently people are just waiting to see how everything works out.

SPORTS SHORTS

A five-foot and Under Men's basketball tournament will be held this weekend at the community center. It is sponsored by the Equality For Five-footers Athletic Association (EFFFFAA). Height will be accurately measured to the inch, as well as verified in writing by the tournament director. Games will start at five.

Roller skating has been so successful in this community that a team has been formed for co-ed Roller Derby competition. Practice will take place at 3 p.m. daily, during open skating, to simulate actual competition. To be eligible you must weigh at least 270 pounds and act mean and tough. A summer tour to western states reservations is planned for the lucky qualifiers.

Three new swimming pools are near completion behind the community center ball fields. The pools will accommodate 300 swimmers with little or no supervision or sanitary restrictions. There are minimal maintenance costs, so savings will be passed on to the users by charging no admission. A grand opening is being planned around a performance by the Synchronized Swimming Ducks of Sidwalter.

A Birthday was celebrated recently. The guest of honor insisted he wasn't a day over 30. He demanded the remaining 15 candles be removed—or else!
