

Education expands skill and knowledge

Automobile tune-up class helps drivers become familiar with the machine they operate. Ken Lydy instructs the course.

Dick Souers paints in rocks on his seascape during a session in oil painting.

Community education through Central Oregon Community College has motivated many Warm Springs people to increase their skills and education. Craft classes as well as credited college courses are offered.

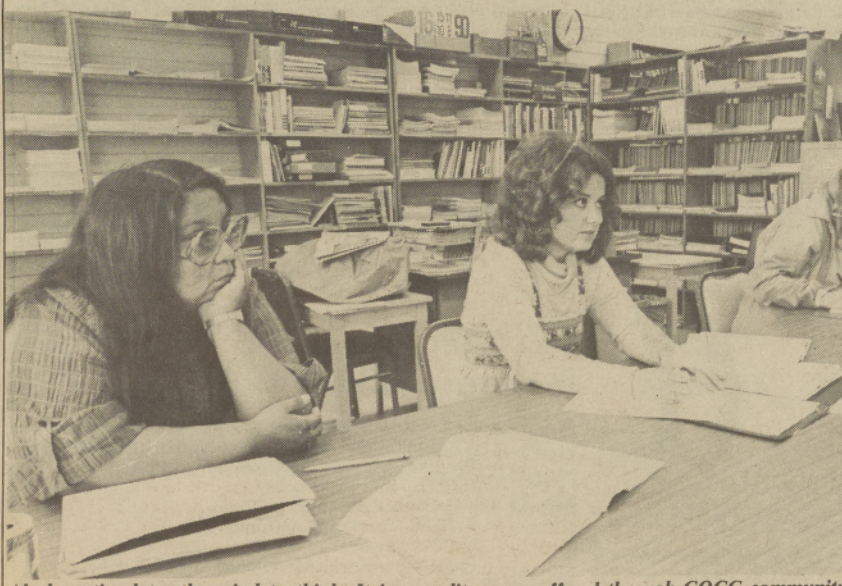

An effort is made by COCC community education coordinator Nancy Pitt to bring to Warm Springs classes that would be of interest to community members. She gladly accept requests and works to get these requests met.

Over 250 individuals have registered for classes during the school year, 100 for credit classes. Many of the students are taking classes to develop themselves for better job opportunities.

Warm Springs has always been very supportive of community education. Once again its existence in Warm Springs is dependent upon passage of the COCC budget levy on May 18. It is necessary that community members get out to vote.

Completed ribbon shirts is the result of one COCC class offered in Warm Springs.

Algebra stimulates the mind to think. It is a credit course offered through COCC community education.

Spilyay Tymoo

photos by

Marsha Shewczyk