

Woodstove safety

This is a safety reminder for those who heat their homes with wood stoves.

You are urged to clean the stove stack regularly of creosote. Creosote, if allowed to accumulate, can ignite a fire in the attic of your home and could cause property loss and serious burns.

In just the last year there were stack fires in Warm Springs—they could have been prevented by simple creosote removal. By cleaning the stack once each year, you can greatly reduce risk in your home. If high-pitch wood, such as pine, is burned often it is a good idea to clean the stack twice each year. Cleaning equipment specially made for wood stoves is readily available in hardware stores.

Children should not be allowed to play near stoves, but in case a child should fall against a hot stove, the child should be pulled away from the stove immediately and the burned area should be placed in cold water as soon as possible to prevent further skin damage. For serious burns, keep the skin in cold water while traveling to the clinic.

Wood stoves are good energy-savers, but keep in mind that safety measures are necessary when they are used.

Tax book published

The USDA Forest Service has issued a new handbook on "The Timber Owner and His Federal Income Tax" that incorporates recent changes in income tax laws related to forest land.

Designed as a guide for the small or large timberland owner, the 75-page booklet will be of help also to consulting foresters, extension and State service foresters, bankers, accountants, attorneys, and others involved in income tax matters.

A clearer understanding of income tax procedures may be financially beneficial and encourage better forest management. "It is hoped that savings from correct reporting of timberland receipts and expenditures will act as an incentive for people to grow more timber, to protect it, and to use it wisely," said Jeff M. Sirmon, Regional Forester.

How should you report timber sale receipts and expenditures? Can you claim a deduction when your timber is damaged or destroyed by fire or windstorm? These and other questions are answered in the handbook.

The handbook (number 956) is available from the Superintendent of Documents, U.S. Government Printing Office, Washington, D.C. 20402, for $4.75 per copy.

Hearing November 22

Pursuant to Part A, Section 1101 a-d, of P.L. 95-561, Jefferson County School District 509-J will hold a public hearing regarding its application for federal impact aid funds under P.L. 81-874 for fiscal year 1983.

The hearing is scheduled during a regular school board meeting beginning at 7:30 p.m. Monday, November 22, 1982, in the library of the Warm Springs Elementary School.

COCC tuition decided

At the November 10 regular Board meeting, Central Oregon Community College Directors unanimously agreed to hold the line on 1983-84 tuition for In-District students, while increasing tuition for Out-of-district and Out-of-State students by 9%.

College President Fred Boyle noted that "The college's first priority is to In-District students. In view of the current economic situation facing Central Oregonians, a raise of tuition would cause severe hardship."

In other business, the Board approved the hiring of two faculty to fill vacant positions, reviewed COCC's tax base proposal vote by precincts, and thanks the Friends of the College and the Broadside staff (the College's student newspaper) for their efforts in helping pass the College's first tax base.

Ducks Unlimited—

Banquet to benefit waterfowl

Deschutes Chapter of Ducks Unlimited will hold its second annual fund raising banquet December 2 at Wong's Restaurant, South Highway 97 in Madras. A prime rib dinner, auction, drawings and valuable door prizes will be featured at the event.

Ducks Unlimited is a nonprofit organization dedicated to waterfowl conservation. Funds generated in the United States through voluntary, tax-deductible contributions are expended to create and improve nesting habitat in Canada, where 70 percent of all North American waterfowl are produced.

Tickets for the Deschutes Chapter banquet are being sold for a $25 donation. Included in the ticket price is one year membership in Ducks Unlimited, the prime rib dinner, participating in a drawing for a Marlin 12 gauge shotgun and many other valuable prizes.

Three commemorative shotguns, available only through Ducks Unlimited fund raising activities, and wildlife art prints, created by nationally known artists, will highlight the auction.

Tickets are available at Oscar's Sporting Goods, Madras Gun and Tackle and Ransom's Department Store in Madras.
