

Proposed mass burn facility

plant.

From the Warm Springs Tribal Council the resolution opposing the plant states, "the Tribal Council of the Confederated Tribes of Warm Springs Reservation of Oregon...hereby declares its opposition to the construction of the proposed garbage processing plant adjacent to the Chemawa Indian School campus in Salem, Oregon.

"Construction of the proposed garbage processing plant near the Chemawa Indian School will impair the quality of the environment in the area of the Chemawa Indian School campus."

A similar statement was issued by the Siletz Tribal Council reading, "evidence indicates that this burning plant could lead to serious environmental and public health problems...The Tribal Council of the Confederated Tribes of Siletz Indians of Oregon hereby declares its opposition to the proposed construction of the garbage burning processing plant near the Chemawa Indian School campus in Salem, Oregon."

Portland Area Indian Health Service Director S.C. Stitt in a letter sent to Chemawa principal Gerald Grey expressed concern for students and staff at the school pointing out the risks to include air quality being decreased, the possibility of water contamination and a diminished supply due to the plant's use of 432,000 gallons per day, roadside litter with increased traffic, and danger to the students with the passing of 243 plant vehicles per day.

Evidence has indicated that garbage burning plants constructed across the nation have created problems from increased noise to ash fallout. With the school being located in a valley closed in by mountain ranges the danger of pollution is high. Other industries in the valley contribute to the problem.

The board of commissioners for Marion County is concerned for the disposal of waste. A 500 acre landfill recently purchased south of Salem will act as a disposal site until the plant is completed if approved and will also be used as a back-up if the plant should fail for mechanical reasons.

An alternative site for the plant has been suggested and is available. Citizens in the area suggest it be used.

Approval of the site depends upon the Marion County Board of Commissioners at this point.

Any comments concerning the plant's construction may be directed to: Marion County Board of Commissioners, County Court House, Salem, Oregon 97301 or Chemawa board member Olney Patt, Sr.

Tewee sentenced to McLaren

A Warm Springs youth, Floyd Tewee Jr., age 15, was sentenced to McLaren School for boys in Woodburn for two years after he entered a plea of guilty to the charge of criminally negligent homicide in Juvenile Court in Madras.

The charge stemmed from an accident on December 16 in which David Greene, age 43, of Warm Springs received fatal injuries. Tewee, the driver of the car in which Greene was a passenger was traveling at a fast rate of speed when he attempted to pass a car. Tewee lost control of the car and it went over a 150 foot embankment. Tewee, Greene and a third occupant, Floyd Tewee Sr., were all thrown out of the car. Greene died enroute to St. Charles Medical Center in Bend. Tewee and his father received minor injuries.

The Jefferson County

District Attorney's office stated that at the time of the accident young Tewee was under the influence of intoxicants and he was driving too fast.

Jefferson County Juvenile Judge Herschel Read sentenced Tewee to McLaren with the recommendation he remain there until his 17th birthday on September 21, 1984. Tewee appeared before Read on February 15.

Chief's outfit stolen

Chief Nelson Wallulatum's house was burglarized according to Bureau of Indian Affairs investigator, Bill Elliott. According to the police reports the house was broken into within a 24 hour period, the things were at the house on February 14 at 9 a.m. but on February 15 at 9 a.m. they were missing.

A Elkskin mens outfit was taken from the house. The shirt and pants were beaded with trimming, the trimming was white with a sawtooth design in red and blue. Also taken was a Citizens Band (CB) base station and two vests according to police reports.

Nelson had been out of town and a complete inventory of his belongings was not immediately available.

The police suggest that people make an inventory of their belongings and have them photographed in color. It is suggested that these be kept in a file at home. The second set of photographs and inventory list need to be kept at another secure place. It is also suggested that people check their inventory at least once a month so they can have a general idea of when they last actually saw the items. Have your belongings marked so they can be identified. If you do not have the equipment then ask the police, they have several methods for markings. On buckskin it is suggested you burn I.D. marks on the inside.

On guns, television sets, radios and other appliances you will find a serial number that be entered on your inventory list. These numbers are important if the items are stolen because it gives the police a very definite advantage in locating items. "Very often people do not have the serial numbers and so all we have to go on is a very general description. . . a 308 rifle and the make...people need to realize there are lots of missing 308s." stated Elliott.

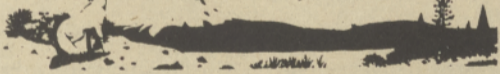

Weapons should be registered at the police station. The department is there for the people and the police have suggested for people to protect their belongings. If you are going to be away from your home for any period of time you can let the department know how long you will be gone, if anyone should be at your house, and other vital information. The department will make periodic checks of your house while you are away. When you are going to be gone make sure your house and buildings are secure. Lock your doors and secure your windows. If you need any help or suggestions call the police department and they can assist you.
