

Tribal Garage celebrates opening

It's a grand opening! The Tribal Garage will have its official celebration May 20.

Celebrating its growth from a blacksmith shop in the early 1900's, its development into a motor vehicle garage and finally the construction of a new facility in July of 1982 the Tribal Garage welcomes everyone to attend.

With 6000 square feet the Tribal Garage houses a full line of service for cars and light trucks. Its services include a parts house, gasoline and diesel pumps, mechanical service garage and a wrecker service.

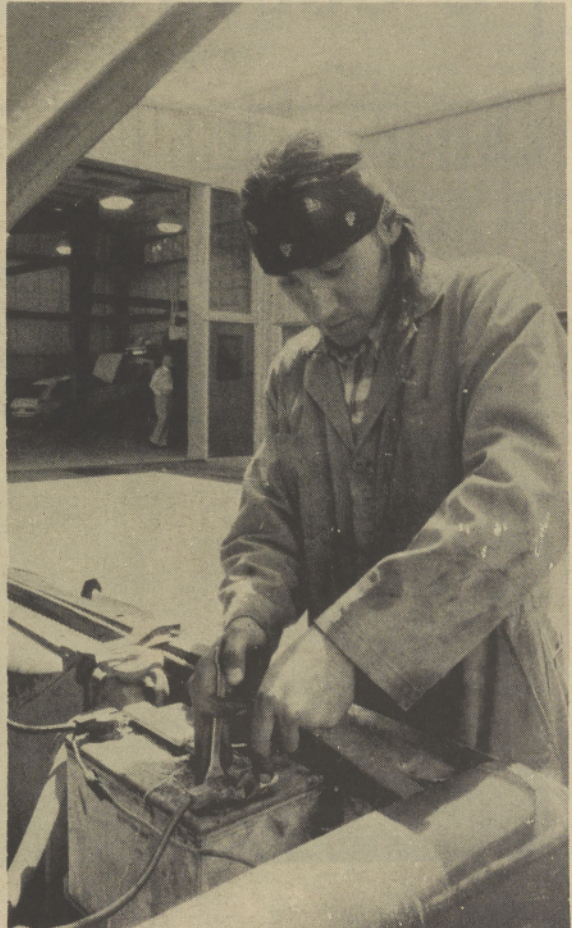

Parts are purchased at wholesale prices and passed on to the customer. Most standard and foreign car parts are available. If they are not available an order can be placed by 3:00 p.m. and the order will be in by 8:00 a.m. the next morning.

The parts shop carries hard to get items such as door handles, snap rings, "endless little things," says Tribal Garage manager Ron Kersey.

The garage service center also offers savings to customers. The $22 an hour labor cost is less than nearby garages. Appointments should be made three to four days in advance.

The Tribal Garage is operated by experienced personnel including: Ron Kersey, manager; Bob Goodrich, parts manager; Ken Lydy, head mechanic, Ronald Suppah, Sr. and Vale Lesena, trainee mechanics; and Erland Suppah, service station attendant.

The grand opening activities will consist of coffee, donuts and door prizes. A representative from Automotive Jobbers Warehouse will be present to discuss automotive problems and parts with those having questions.

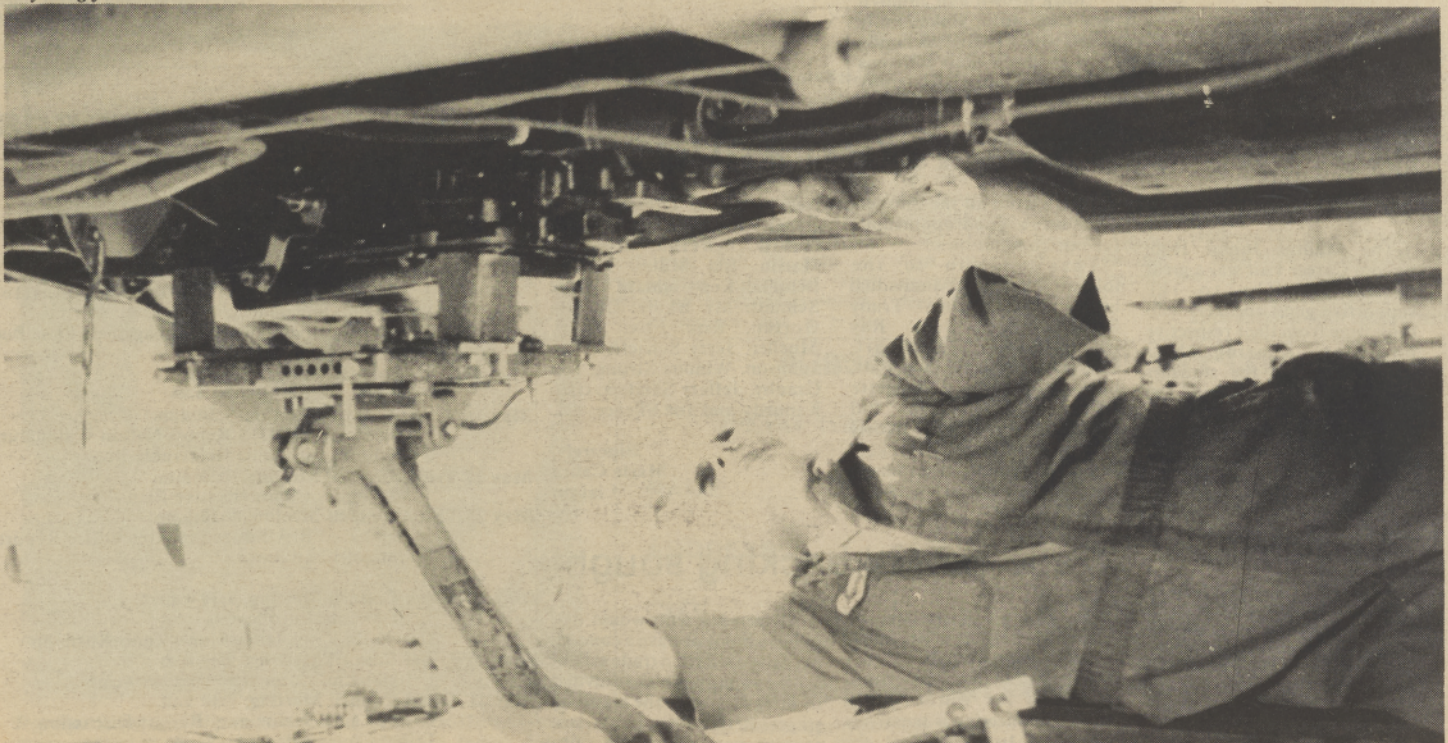

Vale Lesena inspects a battery connection. Lesena has recently begun work at the Tribal Garage in the CETA program

Besides stocking parts on the shelves at the Tribal Garage parts manager Bob Goodrich spends much of his day taking part's orders and locating them. The Tribal Garage has a full parts department with everything from carburator kits to alternators.

Tribal garage
Grand Opening
May 20, 1983
8 a.m. to 5 p.m.
Everyone Welcome

Journeyman mechanic Larry Hollenbeak installs a transmission in a vehicle brought in for repair. Two journeyman mechanics are on duty at the garage.

Spilyay Tymoo photo by Shewczyk