The highlight of the celebration will be the fireworks display which will begin when the night sets in. The fireworks will come from Canby, Oregon and the Fire and Safety crew will stand by to insure the safety of the community.

With the adoption of resolution #6492, Tribal Council has prohibited the sale and possession of explosive fireworks except those sponsored by the Fourth of July Committee and those approved by Fire and Safety chief, Jerry Huff. Also, tribal and federal law enforcement officials will enforce this prohibition by appropriate actions as may be necessary to protect public safety.

Any other information about the 4th of July activities can be obtained from the Fourth of July committee chairman Uren Leonard.

The last meeting will be July 1st at noon at the Community Center.

"We want to have as many participants as we can," stated committee chairman Uren Leonard.

Fishermen voice discontent at meeting

by Pat Leno

A meeting between treaty fishermen and law enforcement agency personnel June 21 at the Celilo Longhouse that was originally planned to discuss the new law enforcement code on the Columbia River turned into a "complaint session" without the code ever being discussed.

A number of officials from various tribal, state and federal law enforcement agencies and a number of fishermen met to discuss the question of jurisdiction and enforcement of tribal fishing regulations. It was originally planned that the enforcement personnel would form a panel and answer questions the fishermen had concerning the newly written regulations. The new regulations will be enforced on the Columbia River in Zone 6, between Bonneville and McNary Dam.

Law enforcement people believed the concerns were mainly about the Columbia River Inter-Tribal Enforcement code which was written to govern fishing by members of the three approving treaty tribes (Nez Perce, Umatilla and Warm Springs) exercising fishing rights in the Zone 6
