

Roessel named one of nations top

Faith Roessel, a legislative assistant to Senator Jeff Bingaman (D-NM), has been picked by a prominent national magazine as one of the nation's 100 Young Women of Promise.

Good Housekeeping has saluted Ms. Roessel as one of "the new leaders who are making their mark now and will change our world in the years to come."

A lawyer and a member of the Navajo Nation, Ms. Roessel has been Bingaman's leading advisor on Indian affairs, health and human services, and education since mid-1983. She was formerly an associate with a Phoenix firm that represented the Navajo Nation as its general counsel. She was the first member of the Tribe ever to practice law in that capacity.

Ms. Roessel is the daughter of Robert and Ruth Roessel of Round Rock, Arizona, both of them noted pioneers in Indian education. She was raised on the Navajo Reservation, and attended Chinle High School where she was the salutatorian of her graduating class in 1974 and a winner of several oratorical awards.

She took her B.A. in sociology at Ft. Lewis College in Durango, Colorado in 1978, and her law degree from the University of New Mexico in

A day's outing turned into a tragedy for two Oregon City youth at the Kah-Nee-Ta Resort. Richard Sue, 18, and Kenneth Krupa, 16, were traveling west from the Village when their car failed to negotiate a corner. It is estimated the car was traveling at close to 90 mph, it left the road, became airborne, struck a rock, rolled and came to rest on its top in the Warm Springs River. Both youth were pronounced dead at the scene. It has not been determined who was driving the 1985 Fiero. The accident is still under investigation. "Accidents have increased with the nice weather, more people are out driving," stated WSPD Sgt. Rick Souers. He went on to advise, "people should drive with care at all times."

Ute traditional bear dance signifies spring

The traditional annual Southern Ute Bear Dance will be held at Ignacio, Colorado May 30, June 1 and 2.

The Bear Dance, as the Ute Legend goes, was a gift from the bear to the Ute people. A Ute hunter went to sleep and he had a dream of going to a certain place in the mountains and there he encountered a bear. Upon awakening the hunter went to the mountains to the place he had dream of and he came upon a bear. The bear was shuffling back and forth. The bear taught the hunter to dance as the bear and he also taught him the songs that were to be sung during the dance. The bear then instructed the hunter to return to the people and teach them the dance. The story goes that this all occurred during the early spring, after the snows melt and at just the time that all bears would be awakening from their long winter's sleep. Each spring the Utes dance the bear dance in celebration of the coming of spring.

The dance is held in a large circle of upright poles that are inter-woven horizontal with branches; usually the tree branches are from the cedar or pinon trees. The dancers assemble in a straight line with the men at the North and the women at the South. The dancers then do the shuffle step back and forth.

The Southern Ute Bear dance is the second bear dance held each spring. The first dance is held in Utah at Ft. Duchesne by the Uinatah band of Utes. The third dance is held by the Ute Mountain bands.

Two thousand trout were recently deposited in the Warm Springs River near Kah-Nee-Ta as fishing season gets underway. Nineteen thousand trout raised at the Warm Springs National Fish Hatchery will be released in the Warm Springs River, Shitike Creek and Happy Valley. Local fishermen will enjoy the fishing along with Kah-Nee-Ta tourists who must purchase a Warm Springs reservation fishing permit to fish the designated area on the Warm Springs River.
