

Handling the first dental visit

One of the most common questions we hear at our office is "When should I take my child for his first dental visit?" The best time for a child's first visit is when he or she is about two years old. Over half of all children have one or more decayed teeth by this age. It's very important that problems are found early so that larger problems can be prevented from happening later on.

Unfortunately, there are a lot of parents around who think that a child doesn't need to be seen until he or she is quite a bit older. Their reasoning is that because "baby" teeth are going to fall out anyway, it doesn't make sense to put a lot of time or effort into their care. This way of thinking is not only wrong, but it can be dangerous. An infected tooth can harm your child's health, allowing decay and infection to spread in the jaws. Primary teeth are needed.

For appearance. A healthy smile and well-shaped face help promote a child's self-esteem.

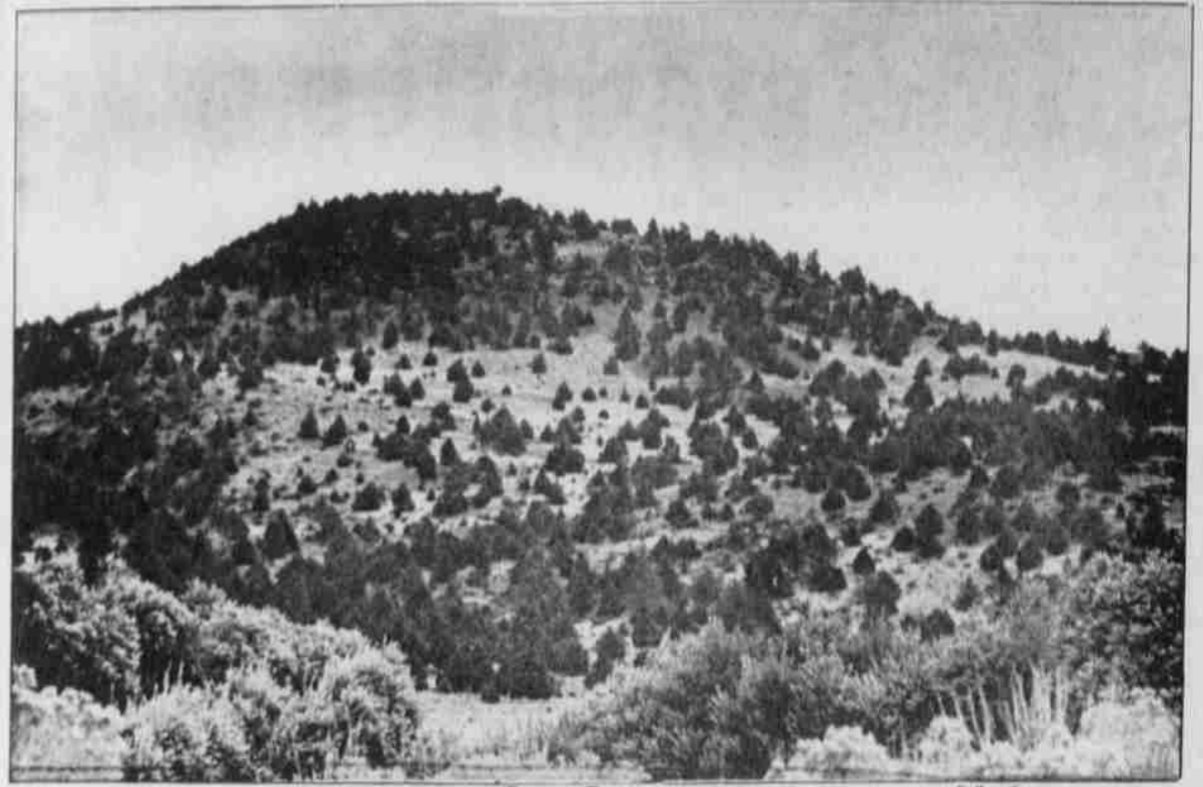

For eating. Healthy teeth are necessary for biting and chewing food.

For speaking. Primary teeth are necessary to help your child learn to speak clearly.

To hold the space for the incoming permanent teeth.

If a primary tooth is lost too early, the adjoining teeth will drift into the open space. If this happens, the permanent teeth may: 1. grow out of position. This creates a need for orthodontic treatment (braces). 2. become impacted (locked within the gums and jaw bones) and not come in at all.

If you spot a cavity on your child's teeth or if the child receives an injury to the mouth, he or she should be taken to the dentist right away no matter what the child's age. Remember, the earlier you begin, the better chance your dentist has to prevent problems.

Completion of FAF's stressed

All potential students who are planning to attend college/vocational school during the academic school year 86-87 are advised to complete a (FAF) Financial Aid Form and submit to the College Scholarship Service in Berkeley, California to meet the College deadlines. It will be to the students advantage to have the FAF's completed and mailed as soon as possible. All awards are subject to the availability of funds.

Office of Training Services/Education will require a copy of your FAF to be attached to your 1986-87 tribal scholarship application to serve as confirmation of each student's commitment to college.

All potential students will need to go through an assessment test before tribal scholarship applications will be considered. This must be done as soon as possible and prior to July 1, 1986.

Submitting these forms are becoming increasingly important as the cost of education escalates. Requirements of 12 credit hours at a 2.00 GPA will be of the utmost importance for continued funding through our office and the college.

Priority will be given to those students having showed evidence of meeting the deadlines for their testing, the FAF's, the Tribal Scholarship applications, etc.

For more information please call or see staff members Levi Bobb, Training Specialist/Education or Myrna Courtney, Assistant.

Four travel to Chemawa to share

Earlier this winter a student from the Chemawa Indian School died after being struck by a car. Alcohol was involved. The Warm Springs community has become known for its active participation in alcohol/chemical abuse education. The school contacted the Warm Springs Tribal Council to ask assistance in presenting a abuse workshop and sharing with the students.

The Tribal Council appointed Olney Patt, Sr., to head a group to attend a one day program at Chemawa which was held March 22. Traveling to Chemawa with Patt were Pierson Mitchell, Margaret Buckland and Chief Judge Richard Frederick. The group shared with the students their knowledge on the abuse of chemicals.

Biologist joins staff

The Warm Springs Natural Resources department has recently hired a tribal biologist who will be responsible for implementation of Bonneville Power Administration fisheries funded programs on the reservation. He will also have responsibility in off-reservation fisheries on the Columbia River and at Sherar's Falls.

Mark Fritsch graduated from Oregon State University with a Bachelor of science degree in fisheries science in June, 1982.

Fritsch recently worked for the Oregon Department of Fish and Wildlife (ODFW) in Springfield, Oregon, evaluating a fish protection device in the Leaburg Canal and making recommendations for facility modifications and operating schedules.

He also conducted and completed the implementation of fencing, design and placement of in-stream structures in private stream corridors for the Joseph Creek drainage.

Working in Maupin for the ODFW Fritsch served as crew leader for a feasibility study for the introduction of anadromous fish on the White River project, studying fish distribution, conducting stream surveys and overseeing operation, maintenance and modification of the Humphrey scoop trap on the Warm Springs River.

Fritsch has worked, also, as a research assistant, and observer aboard a Japanese stern trailer on the Bering Sea.

Besides fisheries Fritsch's other interests include photography, backpacking, traveling and wood-working.

Fisheries Biologist Mark Fritsch began work for the Warm Springs Natural Resources department March 31.

WORK PROGRESSES—The work on the Warm Springs Post Office is now in progress and within five months the building should be completed and in use according to building contractor, C. Jeffer. Crews are working from dawn to dusk and are ahead of schedule. Jeffer stated he has been using sub contractors for some of the work. Pictured above is Leroy Scott who sub-contracted to do backhoe work. Bids are being accepted for the landscaping.

Applications accepted for summer employment

Now's the time to begin thinking of your summer employment plans. We are accepting job applications for college/vocational education students to work under the Student Trainee Program beginning June 16.

Please contact the Office of Training/Education at 553-1161, ext. 262 or 263 or come in and see Levi Bobb, Training Specialist/Education or Myrna Courtney as soon as possible.
