Endurance race challenges riders and mounts

Immediately following the shot of a pistol, twelve riders and their horses thundered through the Culture Camp Park heading across Shitike Creek. The fourth annual Endurance Race, was on. This year the Nick Kalama Memorial Trophy was presented to Shane Olney, winner of the men's division.

The 18-mile race was run through the park, up Shitike Creek road, up the Wilford Canyon road, across Wilford Canyon, to the flat just below Seymour Springs, back down the ridge to the point on White Hill, down the ridge on White Hill, back across the creek and into the park. In the men's division Shane Olney of Toppenish, Washington finished with a time of 56.30 minutes to earn his first leg on the Juanita Bourland trophy and the Kalama trophy. Two brothers from Nespelem, Washington came in second place (Harvey Flett) and third place (Alfred Flett).

In the women's division Snuffy Herrera of White Swan, Washington finished in 59 minutes to win first place prizes. Nellie Spino, Warm Springs, took second place in the women's division.

In the junior division Marty Spino of Warm Springs took the first place awards. Another youngster who rode in the endurance race selected to ride the entire course competing with the men, Thurman Squiemphen, Warm Springs, rode the 18 mile run with his father Terry Squiemphen.

Terry Squiemphen, Warm Springs, experienced some difficulty on the ridge of White Hill. He finished in 1 hour and 40 minutes earning him the "hard luck" title. He received a blanket from the Kalama family for his efforts.

Next year the committee is planning for a larger and better field of riders and horses, according to committee chairperson Beulah Wahpat. Anyone interested in assisting with the 1987 run can contact her at 553-1161, ext. 259 or 260.

Experienced rider and horse can make the final leg of the endurance race on the point look easy.
