

Folk remedies will surely cure the pain

Suffering from a toothache? Well, in 1987 edition of "The Old Farmer's Almanac" contains some folk remedies that are "sure" to reduce/prevent the pain or at least make you hope you will never suffer from a toothache.

Some believers supported the thought that if you put your right stocking on before your left that you would never suffer from a toothache. Another preventive measure is to trim your fingernails and toenails only on Fridays. If you run three times around a church without thinking of a fox, you're sure not to have a toothache.

Some American Indians were known to chew the bark of the northern prickly ash, called the toothache tree, to prevent aching teeth. Being kind-hearted and helping a struggling beetle off its back, has been known to prevent toothache.

Of course, some "cures" listed are somewhat disgusting, like filling the cavity with crow dung and placing fresh cow manure on the side of the face where the ache occurs. Eating a mouse twice a month and eating the eyes of a vulture were sure remedies as is cooking earthworms in oil then placing them in the ear opposite to the ache.

The ultimate cure was recommended by an ancient Chinese physician who said that taking a pill of arsenic would ensure sleep and would prove to be a certain cure. That cure is also final and assures the patient will never again suffer any pain.

Garden planning

Seed catalogs are a good place to start planning for next spring's vegetable garden.

Seed catalog listings are available for locating the specific variety of vegetable you want to grow.

Many catalogs also contain valuable growing hints and other good ideas included with every vegetable listed. Others are localized to provide special help to gardeners in a specific area.

Vegetable varieties adapted to growing conditions in Oregon, or which have shown promise in gardens throughout the state, are listed in "Home and Farm Vegetable Garden," EC871. This publication is available at county extension offices at a charge of 75 cents per copy.

Individuals should study the list of recommended vegetable varieties. Some of them may be available at local garden stores, but others will have to be obtained through seed company catalogs. More information on seed catalogs is available at garden stores.

Forest Service to locate office in Hood River

The USDA-Forest Service will open temporary offices for the Columbia River Gorge National Scenic Area in Hood River, Oregon, on January 18, announced Arthur DeFault, Scenic Area Manager. The new office is located in the Waucoma Center, Suite 301, 902 Wasco Avenue, Hood River, Oregon 97031. The Scenic Area Headquarters will be located in the Waucoma center from four to six months, until a more permanent location is found.

"We felt it was important to move our office and people out into the Gorge as soon as possible, so we choose this location," said

DeFault. "We are now searching for permanent office space somewhere conveniently located in the Columbia River Gorge. We are looking forward to living and working there."

The Scenic Area Headquarters will house a Forest Service Management Team. They will work closely with the Bi-State Columbia River Gorge Commission, once it is established; counties; local jurisdictions; and the public in developing a management plan to implement the Columbia River Gorge National Scenic Area Legislation. Legislation creating the 277,000-acre Columbia River Gorge National Scenic Area was signed by President Reagan on November 17, 1986. Fourteen full-time Forest Service employees will be assigned to the Hood River office to assist in implementing the legislation.

The office will be open from 7:30 a.m. to 4:30 a.m., Monday through Friday. The phone number is (503) 386-2333.

Education questions answered

We have had a lot of inquiries of funding for education. Our recommendation for the 1st step is planning ahead. Because it isn't easy to just go off to school and expect to be funded. We are asking a total commitment from a student planning to go to college. If you have any questions in planning to go to college stop by our office and ask what is involved in receiving funding from the tribe. What the guidelines are and what Ordinance No 26 is. What are the new policies and procedures? Please feel free and stop and chat with Levi Bobb or Jessica Spackman.

We have set deadlines dates for completed tribal scholarship forms for the following terms:

Fall term—end of the second week in July.

Winter term—end of the second week of October.

Spring term—end of the second week in February.

Summer term—end of the second week in May.

Also have your FAF form completed and sent off at least eight weeks ahead of your scheduled start date at the college. We also can help you fill this out too.

Helpful hints

Do you have difficulty reading graphs and charts? If so, you are missing a lot of information. Charts are being used more and more by businesses, newspapers, and government agencies to present a large amount of information at a glance.

There are many different kinds of graphs, each with a slightly different purpose. Circle or pie graphs usually represent all of something (such as the tribal budget) with each piece showing a part or percent of the whole. Bar graphs are often used for comparisons (numbers of different kinds of trees on the reservation, perhaps), and line graphs show trends (such as number of guests at Kah-Nee-Ta over a 12 month period).

The secret of graph reading is simply to look at the graph as a whole and determine what information it is giving. Read the title. Look at the symbols and find out what each means. Look at any figures beside or around the graph. Note the number of units used; does each symbol or square stand for 1 or 1,000? Then look carefully at each part of the graph for specific information that you can use.

Graph reading can make you more informed. Graph reading can give you the "big picture" in a visual way. Remember, we can make better decisions if we are better informed.

Want to know more about reading graphs and charts? The Adult Learning Center can help. The center also helps people prepare for the GED or work towards a high school diploma. Watch for new evening hours beginning in January. Call 553-1428 for more information.
