shambles and a disgrace. We do not see any way in good conscience how you can transfer all of the operations without first straightening that out. We also restate our concern that too much is being done too fast. Prudence would suggest a step-by-step process of attacking the problems, with the first step being the proper accounting of a reconciliation of all accounts. That is a known need and has been addressed by numerous studies."

The Tribe's recommendation is that the "Bureau consider an RFP for accounting services only and that it provide a meaningful consultation process for tribes to participate in the development of such a proposal," because their investment record is good.

According to Fiscal Services Manager Doug McClelland, the general membership "is entitled to accurate accounting of what they have as individuals and as tribes." McClelland also expressed concern for other Indian tribes. "We are deeply concerned that many of the tribes that have been confronted are dependent on the BIA and don't understand what they're being told and think they have to accept what the Secretary says."

In early March, the Council authorized a lawsuit against the Secretary of the Interior, Secretary of the Treasury and the Mellon Bank of Pittsburgh to prevent the initiative from being put into action. Later that month the Tribe put in abeyance the suit following the Secretary's decision to withdraw its plan. Tribal spokesman Mike Clements said, at that time, that the Tribe was in a "wait and see" pattern. The Tribe delayed any further action, waiting to see what actions and changes the Bureau was going to take.

"The threat of the lawsuit is what stopped them the last time," said McClelland. "This is the identical proposal that was presented in January, with minor changes...we feel this is a violation of the treaty and trust relationship," he said.

Topash explained the changes, saying that this time "there is more opportunity for tribes to make comments." Topash also said that in the first go round, six institutions were asked by the U.S. Treasury to bid to take over the management responsibilities. "Now, any qualified financial institution can bid."

Warm Springs teams participate in tourney

by Saphronia Coohise

July 3-5 was the Iltie C. Grover Memorial tournament in Taholah, Washington. The tournament was women's slo-pitch softball. Macy's of Warm Springs, was the local team that traveled to Washington for the tourney.

Macy's had their first game on the bracket a BYE so they automatically won, the second game was Saturday morning at 10:00.

Macy's played the host team, First Americans of Taholah. The game was going fairly well the first five innings, just a little cloudy and a few sprinkles of rain coming down. The score was 10-6, Macy's favor. Then suddenly the few sprinkles turned into a steady rain, but the game was still going on. People were batting and their bats were slipping right out of their hands. The umpire finally called the game, which was to continue it at 3:00 if the rain had stopped.

Macy's then came back at 3:00 to continue the game and play the last two innings. There was still a 10-6 score through the sixth inning. In the seventh inning Taholah scored a run to make the score 10-7 and gave Macy's the win.

Their next game was not until Sunday morning against QTE (Taholah II). It was a close game played in six-and-a-half innings, QTE took the win 5-4.

The next game for Macy's was right after. Macy's still couldn't really get the bats going in the Macy's-Queets game, so Queets won the game 5-1. Macy's was then eliminated from the tournament.

Macy's placed 3rd in the tournament and had two all-stars; Dawn Smith and Anita Vigil.

The men's section of the tournament was baseball with Warm Springs being the team name. The first game for Warm Springs was Friday afternoon at 2:00 against the Taholah Warriors. Warm Springs won the game 12-6 in seven innings. Warm Springs then camp up against Oakville, Washington. Oakville won 5-4. Later on that afternoon Warm Springs played the Taholah Warriors again. Warm Springs didn't pull off the win this time they lost the game 5-0 and were eliminated from the tournament.

The all-stars for the Warm Springs were: Don Bagley and Cy Jim. Warm Springs took 4th place in the tournament.
