"Spilyay Speaks"

Deer hunting season comes along and everyone and his dog were out roaming the hills in hopes of getting that elusive buck. The only problem is today all the hunters are all cooped up in a four wheel drive pick-ups expecting to drive up on the deer. In doing so they drive through fenced property, and it's a wonder that one of them has the ambition to get out and open the gate...because that all they do is open the gate and leave it open. There are reasons for why people fence their property. It's to keep their valuable animals in or keep wild animals out of their crops, while these so called deer hunters come along with no respect for anyone's property and leave the gates open. Kind-ah stupid. Maybe it makes them feel like they are tough guys and stuff like that. Why does it have to be one way or the other, or black or white? The football strike couldn't have come at a better time. No football games on the tube and the deer hunting season just underway. Some people say that they could care less about the football strike. You see one game on the TV you've seem 'um all. Today while the Scabs are playing it's more interesting. There are a lot of broken plays to arouse the spectators on long runs and some good pass plays, put excitement in the games. When the teams are to good all you see is first, second, third down and punt over and over, gets boring. Here with the Scabs there have been some fantastic scoring, that puts a little life in the games. So actually, who gives a hoot about the football strike. For the next few weeks the baseball games will be the high point as its World Series time once again. In the National League it will be either the San Francisco Giants or the St. Louis Cardinals, while in the American League it will be between the Detroit Tigers or the Minnesota Twins. Should be interesting series.

Courts not fair with victim of incest

Editor's Note: The following Dear Abby column is reprinted at the request of a tribal member who wishes to remain anonymous

Promises, Promises—A Child's

View of Incest. I asked you for help, and you told me you would if I told you the things my dad did to me. It was really hard for me to say all those things, but you told me to trust you—then you made me repeat them to 14 different strangers.

I ask you for privacy, and you sent two policemen to my school in front of everyone, to "go downtown" for a talk in their black and white car—like I was the one being busted.

I asked you to believe me, and you said that you did, then you connected me to a lie detector and took me to court where lawyers put me on trial like I was a liar. I can't help it if I can't remember times or dates or explain why I couldn't tell my mom. Your questions got me confused—my confusion got you suspicious.

I asked you for help, and you gave me a doctor with cold metal gadgets and cold hands...just like my father, who said it wouldn't hurt, just like my father, who said not to cry. He said I look fine—good news for you. You said, bad news for my "case."

I asked you for confidentiality, and you let the newspaper get my story. What does it matter that they left out my name when they put in my father's and our home address? Even my best friend's mother won't let her talk to me anymore.

I asked for protection, and you gave me a social worker who patted my head and called me "honey" (mostly because she could never remember my name). She sent me to live with strangers in another place, with a different school.

Do you know what it's like to live where there's a lock on the refrigerator, where you have to ask permission to use the shampoo and where you can't use the phone to call your friends? You get used to hearing, "Hi, I'm your new social worker, this is your new foster sister, dorm mother, group home." You tiptoe around like a perpetual gather donations for door prizes and beaded a visor on behalf of the Miss Warm Springs committee. Pebbles, along with Lyda Scott, Minnie Yahtin, Lana Adams and myself displayed our memorabilia, discussed our experiences as Miss Warm Springs and performed our talent at the luncheons. Liz Teece, Museum curator of MOIHS and a member of the Education committee, spoke on "History of Warm Springs and Warm Springs culture." Her presentation, as well as the others, included resourceful handouts that are available at my office.

Antoinette Pamperein, member of Toastmasters International spoke on "How to give a speech presentation" Mollie Marsh, OSU Extension agent, informed the girls of "Nutrition, Stress and Exercise"; Madeline Queahpama, Public Relations Ad Hoc committee member, took us on a tour of some of the tribal enterprises; Carolyn Cruz, Prevention Coordinator, educated everyone on "alcohol and drug awareness." Eva Montee, Wellness Program director, helped everyone evaluate their potential talent with, "Modern Talent" and, Charlotte Herkshan, Community Counselor, presented "Traditional Talent. We had a fun time with Susan Moody and Jeri Wiehr, both modeling school graduates in their presentations of "grooming and appearance and how to model in a fashion show."

Michael Clements, Assistant Secretary Treasurer and President of the Inter-Tribal Timber Council bored us with "Legislative update on native american issues." Just kidding Mike, it was very informative and necessary for the political aspect of the contests. Due to schedule conflicts, the presentation to be given by Margie Earl, "Career/-life Planning," and mine on "Self Esteem" were limited to brief discussion and handouts. (Something we've learned about scheduling next year).

Not only did the girls gain valuable information, most of them went home with generous door prizes. The grand prize was a $100 gift certificate at Hatfield's department store donated by Hatfield's, the Tribal education committee and Aurolyn Stwyer, which was won by Siagigi Histake. A beautiful beaded rose necklace was donated by Macy's store and was won by Rhonda Johnson. A $3.50 gift certificate was donated by Deschutes Crossing restaurant and won by Mary Calica. A haircut and perm at The Mane Event was donated by owner, Cindi Bobb and won by Elizabeth Hisatake. A visor was donated by Inter-Tribal Sports Center and won by Paula Tufti. Kah-Nee-Ta donated several souvenirs won by all the other participants, which I am still delivering! A big thank you to those sponsors of door prizes.

Next year should have a bigger turnout and be better with this first experience behind us.

P.A.s welcome at stations

KWSI and KWSO radio stations are happy to run public service announcements for non-profit groups and organizations. To have an announcement aired, please send us your information on a 3x5 index card, typed and doubled spaced. Make sure you mention times, dates, places, a phone number for more details and the name of your group or organization. When we receive an announcement in that form, it will be put in the studio right away.

Information sent in other forms will take longer to get on the air since it must be edited and typed up on a card. Public service announcements should not be phoned in and they will not be taken except in emergencies.

Public service announcements are just that, a public service of your radio stations. We are not required to air any, they are free, they are for your general information. Next time you have a message you want to broadcast, please plan ahead and send it to us in the above format. Our address is KWSI/KWSO, P.O. box 489, Warm Springs, Oregon 97761. Thanks.

Thanks for including me

To the Editor,

I just want to thank Marceline LeClaire and all of her family including her own sons Willie, Chris, Ronald McKie, Mark and Louie and her daughters, Charlene, Carol, Cheryl Linn, Debbie, Marcia and Marceline, as well as Marceline's grandchildren, who are really too many to name, for always including me, Roscoe, in any and all of the family's individual birthday lunches. Thank you all for your kindness and thoughtfulness as well as your undying love and respect for me. Thank you for all the very nice full course meals; I have enjoyed all the times with my nephews, nieces and grandchildren.

Most of all I thank Marceline for always inviting me and transporting me back and forth to all the "family meals"! Thank you also for the very nice gifts!

With much love and respect to all.
