Mountain View Hospital and Nursing Home has advanced itself into an elite group of health care facilities in the country by computerizing nursing documentation. Located in Madras, Oregon, Mountain View recently completed installation and implementation of the new system which assists nurses with the construction of patient care plans and ensures documentation in follow-up charting. The condition of the patient and his or her presence to treatment is also easily traced through use of the computer.

The software package known as Nurse Plus" is a complete nursing documentation program which can Mountain View hospital and Nursing home is possibly the smallest hospital in the world to have computerized nursing documentation. When asked why the rural Oregon hospital was chosen as a pilot hospital for such a state of the art system she stated, the innovative attitudes of Karen Potampa, RN, Director of Nursing and Ronald Barnes. the new system is that charting has become more focused on what current state and national nursing standards require for documentation for each patients problems. The convenience afforded by the computer helps ensure that the standards are strictly followed, enhancing quality of care and ensuring that care is accurately documented. All of these efficiencies add up to the nurse being able to spend more time providing direct care to the patient rather than filling out time consuming paperwork. Other typical nursing problem areas are also addressed with automated kardex and acuity systems. Nurses are able to get current work sheets, lists and requisitions printed rapidly. Diet, physical therapy and other orders can be reviewed or printed for each patient with just the touch of a key. The new system will even alert the nurse to check for duplication of medication orders.

The Medical staff have also taken an interest in the new computer terminals at the Mountain View nurses stations. The physicians can use the new terminals to access data bases nationwide to inquire about the latest in medical information on any given condition.
