Auditor keeps eye on tribal spending

Internal Auditor, Aurolyn Stwyer's job is to help ensure that the Confederated Tribes of Warm Springs' Administration spends the Tribe's money wisely.

In effect, she's paid to be critical of Tribal officials, which makes her about as welcome as a pit bull in a dog show.

Aurolyn says the resentment comes with her job. Her role is to evaluate the effectiveness in achieving desired results. Their job is to put the best light possible on what they do.

Aurolyn's job is not to balance the Tribe's books, though she has seven years experience as an accountant, but to evaluate how well it manages specific programs.

"An annual audit plan is the outline of the audit coverage." In 1987 the audits included: evaluating control systems, payroll/personnel testing, observation of inventories, payroll check distribution, surprise cash counts, (17 departments) and assistance with the annual audit. Other duties included public relations presentations, assisting with the annual budget and other special projects.

Typically, a report will recommend ways to cut costs, or improve service to the public, or to clarify policies under lying the programs, compliance with regulations and laws, or a combination of all four.

The Internal Auditor position was brought back into the Tribes operations after being cut in 1980. Aurolyn was selected among the applicants in November, 1986 because she fulfilled the requirement of possessing an Associates degree. Aurolyn is supervised by Evaline Patt, Budget Officer. They report to the Secretary/Treasurer, Larry Calica as members of the Secretary/Treasurer staff.

With one year of experience as Internal Auditor, Aurolyn sees her job as a challenge. The organization is under going constant change and growth. It's become more complex. We've got to look more at accountability. To attain the qualification of her position, Aurolyn is an active member of the Institute of Internal Auditors and attends classes every Saturday at Lewis and Clark College.

Dental assistant welcome

A big welcome to the new dental assistant, Orpha Bluehouse, a native of Ganado, Arizona, who joined us in late January. She, previously, worked in Albuquerque, New Mexico for Southwestern Indian Politechnic Institute (SIPI).

This is "National Dental Health" month! To commemorate it we have been taking pictures for the Smile Contest, and hanging the photos on the bulletin board outside the dental office door. If you are 12 and under, bring your winning smile in to the dental clinic and be given a "National Dental Health Month" sticker. Judging is on the 26th of February. If you wish to keep your child's picture, it may be picked up at the end of February-dental clinic office.

Dr. Mike Hess, Portland Area Dental Prevention officer, was here to do an evaluation of the Warm Springs Dental operations. His overall evaluation was good and he "felt that he saw much quality, so he didn't need volume."

Take responsibility for your own health

The Tribal Wellness Program in cooperation with the Fire and Safety Public Education Program and Indian Health Service will be conducting free blood pressure and blood glucose screening clinics at various locations within the Warm Springs Community throughout the year. These clinics are offered as a public service and open to anyone wishing to take part.

Diabetes is an ever increasing concern to the community of Warm Springs with approximately twenty percent of the Warm Springs population over the age of 45 having the disease. The blood glucose screening is designed to check the level of sugar in your blood—or, in other words, to see if you might be a candidate for the disease. It involves obtaining a few drops of blood from "poking" your finger. The blood is put onto a specially prepared slip of paper and inserted into a machine which records the amount of sugar contained within the blood specimen. If this registers higher than normal, you are referred to the Indian Health Service (or your own doctor as appropriate) for further testing.

Blood pressure—everybody has it, and everybody needs it. In fact, without a certain amount of pressure, your blood couldn't circulate through your body. Although some variation in blood pressure is normal and even necessary, some folks maintain a level that is almost always greater than it should be. That is called hypertension. Folks with constant "hypertension" or "high blood pressure" are at a much greater risk for coronary heart disease, congestive heart failure, stroke and damage to kidneys than persons who have their blood pressure under control. The blood pressure screening clinic checks your blood pressure by tightening a band around your upper arm then listening through a stethoscope as the pressure is lessened. This is painless and takes just a minute or two of your time. If your pressure is found to be elevated you will be asked to have it checked again within a few days and/or refer-

Taking part in these two screenings is essential to your health and well-being and represents a serious commitment on your part to take responsibility for your own health.
