

"Pure luck," phone call garner couple week-long cruise

It was a stroke of "pure luck" that won Tommy and Jeanine Kalama a cruise to the Mexican Riviera. Come September, the couple will be sailing aboard the Tropicale for a fun-packed week. The trip is a result of a contest sponsored by KWSI FM 96.5

Tommy, his wife and four children, not unlike hundreds of other central Oregon residents, dropped their names into the orange and white striped boxes at the numerous businesses throughout the area. And, not unlike other residents, Tommy and his family listened for their names to be drawn for the daily prizes, which, if responded to quickly enough, would qualify them for the grand prize drawing May 21.

The opportunity to qualify for the daily prizes came when Tommy's name was drawn and announced on the radio. He was then given 9.6 minutes to call the radio station. However, Tommy had turned off his radio at work and didn't hear his name. It was co-worker who told another co-worker who told Tommy that he had just a few minutes left to call. Tommy ran to Bob Sanders' office and dialed what he thought was the station at 553-1374. "It rang five times and I decided it was the wrong number."

With precious time running out, Tommy then called the tribal switchboard and learned the correct number was 553-1367. "I called that number three separate times," letting it ring five times each call, said Tommy. Finally, on the final try, someone answered. "I barely made it," he said. With his successful phone call, Tommy won two liters of pop, a hamburger, a beach ball, tickets to the Timber Carnival in Prineville and an album plus a chance for the bigger prizes.

Tommy's name was put in the pot with the other successful callers and on Saturday, May 21, he and his family went to Redmond to be present for the big drawing. However, the left before the final drawing took place. They called the station the next day to confirm what they had heard from friends and family; that they had indeed won the cruise.

Tommy and Jeanine will be leaving Portland September 11 and fly to Los Angeles from where they will depart on their week-long cruise. While away, they will visit Puerto Vallarta, Mazatlan and Cabo San Lucas. The ship also offers many activities that will keep the couple busy, such as swimming, shopping, eating (eight meals a day) and many other things.

The Mexican cruise was provided by KWSI, all central Oregon Erickson's Sentry Markets and Bachelor Beverage.

Other winners in the "Cruise Into Spring" promotion were as follows:

The 10-foot by 12-foot cedar or redwood decking was won by Evelyn Gates of Redmond. The decking was provided by Madras Builders Center and Mr. Jones Warehouse of Redmond.

The complete camping and fishing gear outfit, provided by Prineville Sporting Goods, was won by Jennifer Hatfield of Madras.

Susan Rask of Madras won the 12-foot Smoker Craft Boat, provided by Moonlight Marine of Bend.

John Kiser of Madras was the winner of the Tomahawk Lodge provided by Pyramid of Redmond.

King sworn in

Dr. Duane King, director of the Middle Oregon Indian Historical Society (MOIHS) was among ten members of the first board of trustees for the newly privatized Institute of American Indian and Alaska Native Culture and Arts Development was sworn in at a ceremony in Santa Fe, New Mexico June 3. The oath of office was administered by Ross Swimmer, assistant secretary of the Interior.

The inauguration was one of the final steps in the transition of the Institute of American Indian Arts (IAIA) from a program of the BIA to an independent, nonprofit institution. All of the IAIA's current activities will be part of the new federally chartered Institute of American Indian and Alaska Native Culture and Arts Development. The Institute's charter was granted by federal legislation passed and signed into law in 1986.

Among the Institute's board of trustees are leaders in the arts, education and business communities from throughout the United States. The members were nominated by President Reagan and confirmed by the U.S. Senate.

Among the first tasks for the board is the selection of a new president for the Institute. A feasibility study for a new campus for the Institute which is now using facilities at the College of Sante Fe will also be carried out. The board must also raise $500,000 from the private sector to match $500,000 in federal funds for a permanent endowment.

The IAIA was established in 1962 by an executive order of President John F. Kennedy. Students from 26 states representing 60 tribes are now enrolled in programs leading to an associate of Fine Arts degree in creative writing, museum management, three dimensional arts and two dimensional arts. A certificate program is also offered for students not seeking a degree.

Pro-tem judges rapping gavels

Two new judges are rapping their gavels in tribal court these days. Don Costello and Barbara Haslinger, both attorneys from the Bend area, began working as pro tem judges in March.

Costello, an attorney in Sisters for the past 10 years, is currently municipal judge for the city of Redmond and serves as a juvenile court referee in Deschutes County circuit court. He is also the court of appeals judge for the tribal worker's compensation program.

Because of his busy schedule and future plans, Costello is in the process of turning over his law practice to fellow-pro tem judge Haslinger and Mike McCord. Costello intends to apply for the chief judge position vacated by Richard Frederick.

Haslinger has been practicing law since her graduation from the University of Oregon in 1981. She studied Indian law under Charles Wilkinson and assisted with the "Bible" of Indian law, "Cohen's Federal Manual of Indian Law."

Both judges travel to Warm Springs one or two days a week to assist with trials and hearings as well as a full array of civil, criminal, domestic and juvenile cases.

A three-person judicial nominating committee was appointed earlier this year to develop a list of potential candidates and to select a new chief judge. Final selection is expected this fall.

George's purchase trading post

Leander and Delores George have purchased the Wapenish American Indian Trading Post at 9th and Highway 97 from Joyce and Arne Eklund.

The sale was final last week, and Saturday was the first business day in Wapato for the Georges.

The house that sits on the corner property is part of the transaction, and the George family will move in soon. The Eklunds say they are retiring to an isolated 10 acres near Rattlesnake Ridge and plan to take up the wearing of blue jeans and cowboy boots and hats.

Mr. George said they intend to continue it as a family business, with children Colleen, Deanna, Renee and Brian helping full or part-time, as needed.

"Hopefully, with all of us we have every aspect of business covered, computers, bookkeeping, everything," said Mrs. George.

The Eklunds will stay on for several weeks.

Indian Heritage week celebrated at local schools

Indian Heritage Week, May 16-20, was celebrated in numerous activities at schools throughout the 509-J School District. Assemblies, special speakers and a powwow involved students and community members in the occasion.
Miss Indian USA, Theodora

Roanhorse, joined Princess Palemoon in emphasizing to Madras High School students the necessity of getting a good education and being involved. Setting goals, too, is important and working towards them with diligence.

A student leadership retreat allowed Indian educators and inspirational speaker Howard Rainer an opportunity to work with students.

Madras Jr. High students enjoyed an assembly where Rainer made a presentation and Warm Springs Elementary students participated in a powwow.

Madras High School Native American Student Union sponsored many of the activities with the Confederated Tribes of Warm Springs, Johnson O'Malley Committee, Title IV Committee and the Warm Springs Education/Training department.

Mitchell/Heath wedding announced

Wedding bells were ringing at the Shaker Church, Saturday afternoon. Married were Eva Ann Mitchell and Ron "Boss" Heath at 3:00 p.m. June 11, 1988. Officiating the double ring ceremony was Peggy Williams Poitra. Other members of the Shaker Church also took part in the ceremony. Janice Lucci and Woody Smith said a few words on the sanctity of marriage and encouraged the couple to see their marriage through its trials.

The bride was led down the aisle by Wilford "Wiggy" Sooksoit; Darla Davis was the maid of honor; standing for the groom were Foster Kalama and Tony Boise.

A reception followed in the Shaker Church dining room.
