

Campers take the challenge at annual camp

For 4-H aide Debbie Scott the hike to the top of Olallie was another of her tasks in her new job with the Oregon State Extension Service.

The Warm Springs Challenge Camp hikers set a record for future participants in Challenge Camps in that all make it to the top Olallie Butte. Pictured are the hikers: (kneeling left to right) guest instructor Rick Krause, Mona Smith, Chris Barney, Gary Wahpat and Rose Lucci; (standing left to right) Waylon Beymer, Russell Graham, SAR volunteer instructor Vinson Macy, Rain Circle, instructor Doug Dunlap, Emily Lucci, SAR volunteer instructor Keith Baker, Woody Picard, Ron Plamer and 4-H aide Debbie Scott. Extension agent Mollie Marsh also made the hike but elected to be the photographer.

Selecting a tent partner, setting up camp, unpacking and settling in were activities for the first day of the camp with plenty of time left for night hikes and whatever else was called for.

The 1988 4-H Challenge Campers were:

Ron Palmer, Waylon Beymer, Rain Circle, Gary Wahpat, Russell Graham, Francis Jefferson, Clem Picard and Chris Barney.

Counselors were Starla Green, Woody Picard, Emily Lucci and Rose Lucci.

Positive ideas start from within.

Sharing a meal with family, guests and visitors, for the 4-H campers it was another part of the fun of camp.

Caring for the Land and Serving People

17 August 1988

We take this opportunity to express our appreciation to the residents and visitors of Central Oregon. Your support, assistance and cooperation during the recent fire incidents on the Deschutes National Forest is very appreciated. Commitment of resources and dedication of time and energy by all resulted in successful management of the situation. Many valuable resources were protected while maintaining safety of people.

THANK YOU
