Pedestrian hit by car, dies

On October 3, 1988 at 10:20 p.m., the Warm Springs Police department was notified of an accident on Highway 26 at milepost 96.8. On arriving at the scene, police found a Warm Springs man, Russell Gordon Tufti, 22, had been hit by a car. Tufti was transported to Mt. View Hospital in Madras where he was pronounced dead by the attending physician, Leland Beamer.

According to BIA agency special officer, Rob Moran, a car driven by Sara Mitchner Allison, 52, 2723 S.W. Buena Vista Drive, Portland, was traveling eastbound behind a semi-truck. At a level stretch of highway, she accelerated to pass the truck. As she started around the semi, she observed Tufti in the traffic lane. She attempted to brake and avoid Tufti, but the right rear end of her car struck Tufti. Allison's car continued going off the highway into the northside ditch. According to reports, Allison and other passersby attempted to help Tufti while another driver went for the police and ambulance.

According to Moran, the incident is still under investigation. He stated that he has requested assistance from the Oregon State Police in his investigation.

Woman killed in single-car accident

A Warm Springs tribal member, Sophia Jolene Williams, 24, died Sunday, October 2, 1988 in a single-car accident on Jackson Trail Road. Williams and Robert Williams were both passengers in a car driven by another tribal member, Johnson Nixon Heath, 19.

According to police reports, the car driven by Heath was traveling westbound when the car went off the left shoulder of the road and traveled up an embankment. It then rolled over on its top. Ms. Williams was partially out of the car, and when it rolled over, the vehicle landed on her.

The Warm Springs Police department arrested Heath and charged him with driving under the influence of intoxicants. Charges in tribal court are pending at this time. The case is still under investigation by the Bureau of Indian Affairs (BIA), according to agency special officer Rob Moran. The BIA law enforcement agency will present evidence to the U.S. Attorney's office in Portland for a possible charge of manslaughter.

Wellness team attends annual conference

The 12th annual Seaside Health Promotion conference was held June 12-17 and was attended by 1,000 participants, including six people from Warm Springs. This was the fifth year a team from Warm Springs has attended the conference.

According to local wellness coordinator Eva Montee, the Warm Springs team consists of four slots, however, four additional slots were added this year to include health representatives from other reservations. Those attending from Warm Springs were Lucinda Green, Antoinette Pamperien, Mollie Marsh, Viola Govenor, Ruth Tewee and Eva Montee. Conni Sutton, from Burns, attended as part of the local team as did Lorena Thompson of Umatilla.

The activities of the conference were varied and included, among other things, learning up-to-date, factual health information; sharing successful health promotion teaching techniques; and, developing an action plan.

The action plan developed by the Warm Springs team included presenting educational sessions dealing with a variety of health-related topics, expand activities aimed at weight reduction and exercise, continue to design and conduct activities aimed at prevention and maintenance of diabetes and implement some wellness activities directed toward youth. Montee explained that the action plan developed at the conference is worked on and/or completed throughout the year. An evaluation in the spring determines whether the team is invited back to the conference.

The local team received the "Most Noticeable Seaside Team Award". Each team member received a jacket for the first-place award. They also received fitness walking books that are available for check-out from the wellness office. Lucinda Green designed the first place award-winning name tags—hand tanned moccasins—and the team's ribbon shirts for which they received third place. The team, with help from the participants in the local diabetes exercise program, performed chair exercises as part of the opening ceremonies. The team also performed a take-off of the butterfly dance, that depicted the "emergence of an Indian maiden from a cocoon to an aerobic butterfly."
