From Tribal Court...

Offices moved, license requirements noted

by Leona Ike

New Location—

The tribal court is now located in the basement of the old administration building. We also have a new entrance door that is located on your left as you face the building. The tribal prosecutor and the parole and probation offices are now located in the upstairs offices where the court was once located.

Persons needing to conduct business with the court must check in with the receptionist located on your left as you enter the basement of the building. The court will be having an open house for the public at a later date.

The tribal court judges are located on the west side of the building in the basement. Please check in with the receptionist or the judges' secretaries prior to making contact or scheduling an appointment.

Reservation license requirements—

Reservation licenses are available at the tribal court at the cost of $.50 (50 cents). The licenses are issued, upon the chief judge's approval, for occupational and business purposes.

In order for the chief judge to act on your application, you need to do the following:

1. Submit a copy of your driving record printout from the Department of Motor Vehicles, OR, submit something in writing from an employee of the DMV office;
2. If you are applying for an occupational license, you must have your supervisor fill out the lower portion of the application form;
3. If you are eligible for a state driver's license but are not prepared or able to obtain one at the time of submitting your reservation license application, state on your application the amount of time you will need to prepare yourself to get a state license; and,

4. Make sure you are specific on the reasons why you need this license.

All reservation licenses expire on December 31 of each year and need to be renewed at the beginning of each year. If you have been issued a temporary license, your license expiration date may be an earlier date.

Understand that driving is a privilege, not only in the state, but on the reservation as well. If you abuse your driving privileges or if the stipulations of your reservation license are not complied with, your license can be invalidated and/or your driving privileges can be suspended.

Where is the "M"?

It was recently noticed that the words "Warm Springs" on the canyon wall north of the town of Warm Springs were altered to read War Springs. Students initially painted the stones white to create the sign and other groups, since, have maintained the marker throughout the years.
