Season began June 1....

Local crews busy with fires

The Warm Springs Indian Reservation has seen 34 wildfires so far this fire season. All fires have been man-caused. Just over half were caused by fire works and 16 of the fires occurred on July 3, 4 and 5.

All fires, except one, have been in populated areas such as Kah-Nee-Ta, Warm Springs and Simnasho. The one lone fire located away from a populated area was the Mural Creek Fire. That fire scorched 79 acres of commercial Douglas fir and ponderosa pine.

The fire season officially began June 1, said Gary Cooke, fire logistics coordinator. A fire season begins "when there is a reasonable risk of fire." Cooke also said the local fire management office has recorded 50 actions including prescribed burns, sending local crew members to assist other agencies and actual fires on the reservation. Warm Springs fire management employees have assisted on fires in Alaska, the Southwest and fires within Oregon.

ing east bound on Highway 26 when his car crossed the center line and collided with an Interstate Heavy Hauling truck driven by Richard Bensen of Portland. The west bound truck was hauling earth moving equipment and was being guided by two pilot vehicles. Bensen was unable to avoid the collision with the car. Following the impact, the truck burst into flames. Another truck driver assisted Bensen out of the truck. The truck and equipment were destroyed with esti-ated value set at $40,000 for the truck and $250,000 for the equipment. Vasquez' car, a 1978 Datsun two-door, was destroyed.

A passenger in the car, Jose Gonzales, age and address unknown, was transported by Air Life to St. Charles Medical Center in Bend where he was treated for neck injuries and released. Bensen was transported to Mt. View Hospital by ambulance where he, too, was treated and released.

Recreation intensity zones mapped for Gorge

Three elements of a regional recreation plan for the Columbia River Gorge has been unveiled by the Gorge Commission and the U.S. Forest Service.

Recreation intensity zones have been mapped for the entire region, showing the intensity of recreation proposed for each area. The zones will regulate the intensity and size of recreation uses. Proposed guidelines include: Zone 4-Parking areas for up to 100 cars, 25 percent of site in open space, campgrounds of up to 150 units (10 units per acre); Zone 3-Parking for up to 50 cars, 50 percent of site is open space, campgrounds of up to 50 units (5 units per acre); Zone 2-Parking areas for up to 20 cars, small rustic campgrounds; Zone 1-Unpaved parking for up to 10 cars, unpaved trails, dispersed camping and no facilities.

Most of the Gorge has been mapped for low intensity recreation. In response to public concern that the upper limits of Zone 4 are too restrictive, the Commission is considering an exceptions process to allow more intense development if specific criteria are met.

Fairs are the fare!

Ready for some fun during the next few weeks? Well, Central Oregon is the place to be as numerous County fairs are planned.

The first of the local fairs will be in Madras as Jefferson County hosts the annual event July 27 through July 30.

The Deschutes County Fair and Rodeo will be held in Redmond August 2 through 6.

It may be a tough decision to make for the weekend of August 17 through 20 as both the Wasco County and the Crook County Fairs will be held that weekend.

This year's high school, college and special program graduates were honored with a dinner at the Agency Longhouse.

An inventory of potential sites for recreation uses such as river access, campgrounds and interpretive facilities, is being mapped. Both private and public lands are being evaluated for their recreational potential.

A third set of maps will show an inventory of potential trails, scenic drives and bike paths. Trails include a Gorge-wide loop, a bike path along the length of S.R.14 and reopening abandoned sections of the Columbia River Highway for hiking and biking. Maps will present trail concepts, not exact routes, according to planners. These are still in the draft stages and still subject to agency and public comment.

The Commission adopted priorities after studying recreation demand in the Gorge.

Young people discuss alcohol, recovery

The need to be accepted, to have friends and the peer pressure in their age group were a few answers given by the youth panel at the Second Annual Youth and Adults in Recovery Conference.

Six young people shared many reasons and insights on their experiences. Some spoke through their tears, moving many in the conference to tears also. They shared their feelings when they hear about or see an adult that's a leader in the community doing what they shouldn't be doing. One panelist said "We hear gossip about them, what they are doing and it hurts." Another spoke of being fortunate to have a non-alcoholic family but had dealt personally with peer pressure from cousins and friends.

The conference was held at Kah-Nee-Ta Resort beginning Monday evening, June 19, with approximately 150 people in attendance. It ran through Tuesday and ended Wednesday, June 21, 1989. There was a variety of panels including one with the elders sharing with the main speakers from Eugene, Oregon.

Other activities included a salmon feed, mini powwow and the film "The Honor of All, Part I & II."

There will be another conference in the fall but at this time is in the planning stages.
