Involvement important—Continued from page 4

Math skills can be honed by engaging students in simple chores such as counting items to be laundered.

For older students, the NEA-backed program suggests activities that range from scrutinizing advertising to planning a special trip for friends or family by figuring out the transportation, travel time and cost.

"The home is the first learning place for children and parents are the first teachers in every child's life," stresses NEA's Geiger. "If we can build a strong love for learning and respect for education in the home of every child, schools and educators will have a stronger foundation on which to build for the future."

Home Learning Recipes are available by writing NEA's Office of Education Outreach Program, 1201 16th Street, N.W. Washington, D.C. 20036.

Trivia

Wild flowers have been known to bloom in the Arctic—even at the edge of glaciers.

Scientists say the blue color of the sea is due to only to the reflection of the sky.

Navajo Nation Fair—

the social song and dance competition where participants compete from throughout the Navajo reservation for top prize money. This event derives from a healing rite ceremony called the 'Ndaa (squat dance). The singing and the two-step dance portion of the ceremony is performed by the contestants. Moreover, if you're looking for beauty and traditional Navajo talent simultaneously, then don't miss young Navajo women vie for the eminent Miss Navajo Nation title.

The Navajo Nation Fair also showcases numerous multi-talented Indian artists who compete for thousands of dollars in more than 200 individual arts and crafts categories. Such categories include textiles, silver jewelry, pottery, photography and sculpture, to name a few. The arts and crafts competition exhibits the pageantry and richness of the Navajo culture. Highlighting the Navajo culture at its finest.

Although the Navajo Nation plays a significant role in sponsoring a successful fair every year, it's Navajoland visitors who have helped make the Navajo Nation Fair, the world's largest Indian Fair. So with this notion in mind, the Navajo Nation proudly invites everyone to the 43rd Annual Navajo Nation Fair. Come to Navajoland and let's share our culture with you!
