during the difficult times. Grandpa, Herbert Stwyer, Sr. shared his wisdom and encouragement, which I cherish. I am proud of the love and support we receive from extended families here on the reservation. I'll sure miss everyone.

Tribal management has provided me with a variety of work experiences that enriched my life and will be a major resource to apply to my studies. I appreciate your direct support and encouragement: Larry Calica, John Henning, Jeffrey Sanders, Sal Sahme, Charles Jackson, Warren "Rudy" Clements, Ron Malfara, Geoff Bury, Mike Clements, Benson Heath, and Evaline Patt. Ken Smith is an inspiration and role model. I admire his disposition in dealing with difficult decisions and people.

Mom, you've certainly made life easier when I called on you for assistance. You've carried quite a load as the sole parent to me and my five brothers. I know you always did your best and I love you for that.

Aurolyn Renee Stwyer (Na-kish-a-yat)

Hotline to assist wood gatherers

Firewood cutters and industrial operators can call a newly established "hotline" phone to receive the latest Fire Precaution Schedule rating, 24-hours a day. The number for the recorded message is, (503) 447-9692. The Hotline will provide current ratings for the main body of the Ochoco National Forest, which includes the Big Summit, Paulina, Prineville, and National Grassland Districts. It will also provide ratings for the Snow Mountain Protection Zone Burns. All BLM land adjacent to the Ochoco National Forest will be covered by the report as well.

The Fire Precaution Schedule rating system combines state-of-the-art weather, computer modeling, field weather station input and analysis by fire managers in order to predict the danger...or potential of a fire start. Then, based on that danger, a Fire Precaution Schedule rating is set which places restrictions, as necessary, on firewood cutting and industrial operations.

The Fire Precaution Class system has 4 ratings, I, II, III and IV. In brief, personal use firewood cutting will be permitted with no time restrictions when observing Precaution Class Level I. When observing Level II, wood cutting is permitted until 1:00 PM and requires a one-hour fire watch after the chainsaw is shut off. No firewood cutting will be permitted when observing Precaution Class Levels III and IV.

Disability Act passes House, Congress, awaits President's pen

The Americans with Disabilities Act (ADA), will have a positive impact on the lives and lifestyles of this nation's estimated 43 million people with disabilities. ADA was favorably passed by the House of Representatives and recently approved by the Senate. Now, it awaits the signature of President Bush. The signature is expected in approximately one week.

ADA has been said to be "as large and as widely impacting as any Civil Rights movement of the 60's!"

Some ADA guarantees are: people experiencing disabilities will have access to transportation, restaurants, shopping malls and many other "public" accommodations.

In addition, ADA will make it easier for a person with disabilities to be removed from welfare type programs, and obtain paying employment based on their ability vs being denied a position, based on their disability.

For additional information on ADA, or disabilities in general, feel free to contact CORIL at 388-8103 or stop by the office at 42 NW Greeley, Bend, OR.

Dancers take 1st

The "Little Wascos" won first place during the Fourth of July Parade in Madras, doing traditional singing and dancing. A week later, the Little Wascos placed second in the parade at the Crooked River Round-Up.

The young group has been quite busy performing at various functions this year. This weekend the Little Wascos will perform at the Multnomah County Fair in Portland. They will be performing on the main stage at the fair with their first appearance at 2 p.m. Saturday and again at 7 p.m. The group will perform Sunday at 2 p.m.

The young Wascos still have a little schedule ahead of them at other up-coming fairs and public functions around the state.

Cadets learning the ropes of Warm Springs Police Department

The Summer Youth Cadets are currently participating in a five-week program in which they will get a taste of police work. Their supervisor is Bruce Fones, Police department training officer/Coordinator.

The cadets patrol with officers and learn the use of equipment in a patrol car. They work in the detention center and complete routine care duties for housed prisoners. They learn the 9-1-1 emergency system and how dispatching officers to an emergency. As investigation trainees, they learn how to get finger prints, interview suspects and how to look for possible clues. As clerical trainees, the cadets learn how to file reports and how to properly store evidence.

The cadets spend one week in each area of training. This is but one way in which young adults can find out what interests them most about police work.

Skin cancers can be treated with simple procedures

Basal-cell and squamous-cell skin cancers often appear as pale, waxlike, pearly nodules, or red, scaly, sharply outlined patches. Any change in an existing mole should be checked by a physician, since this may be a sign of melanoma. Or melanoma can arise in previously normal skin, as small molelike growths that increase in size, change color, become ulcerated and bleed easily from a slight injury. The warning signs of melanoma can be easily remembered by the first four letters of the alphabet: "A" stands for asymmetry—one half of the mole does not match the other half. "B" is for border irregularity—the edges are ragged, notched or blurred. "C" is for color—the pigmentation is not uniform. "D" is for diameter greater than 6 millimeters (about the size of a pencil eraser). Any large mole should be checked by a dermatologist, as should any mole that suddenly or continually increases in size.

Once diagnosed, skin cancer is usually treated surgically. Small basal-cell or squamous-cell cancers can be removed in a dermatologist's office, with little or no disfigurement. The surgical techniques used to remove all three types of skin cancer include electro-surgery, which involves curettage (scraping) and electrodesiccation (burning); cryosurgery (freezing); excisional surgery (cutting out the cancer, along with a margin of surrounding tissue, with a scalpel); and Mohs' surgery (in which the cancer is shaved off in microscopic slivers). Sometimes, especially in older individuals or cases of malignant melanoma, radiation therapy or chemotherapy may be recommended. And one of the newest forms of treatment for basal-cell cancer currently being studied is immunotherapy, in which injections of a substance called alpha interferon are used to stimulate the immune system to fight the cancer.

You'll avoid the necessity of such treatments, however, by following the simple preventive measures above. If everyone heeds this advice, it's possible that the runaway skin-cancer rate can be halted, and future generations will be skin cancer-free.
