become perpetrators of child molestation.

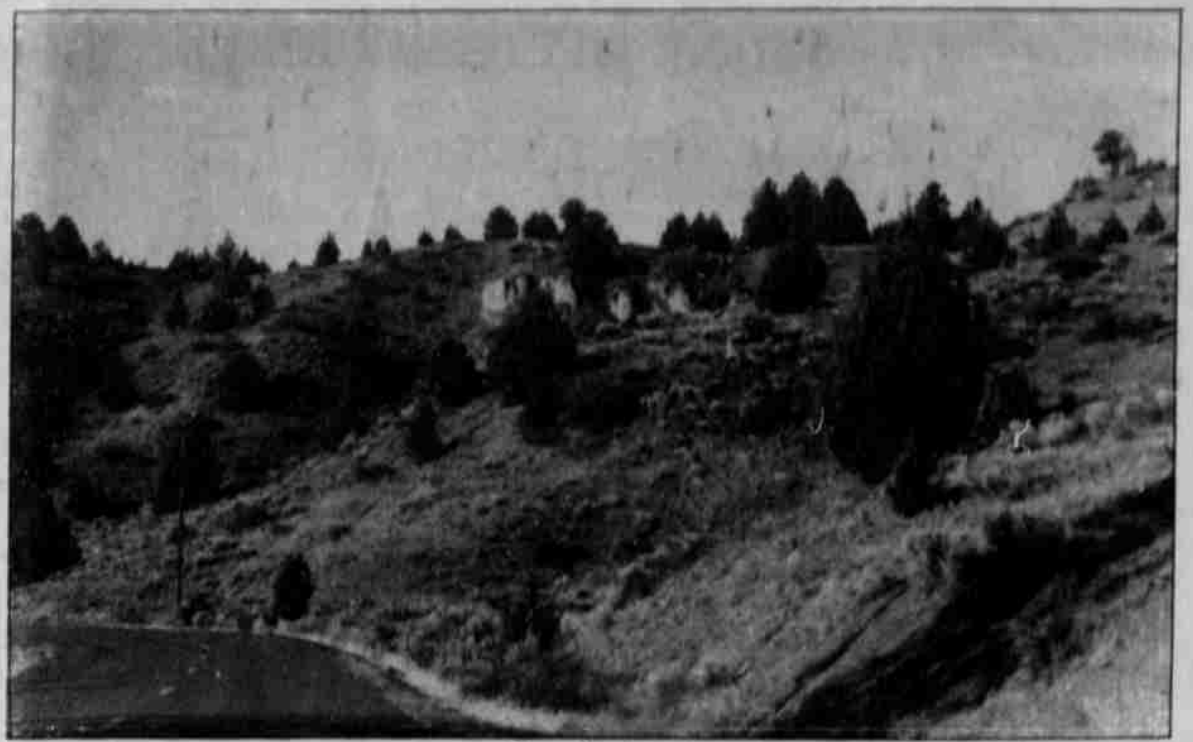

I realize that child sexual abuse is usually an issue that many do not want to talk about. However, as a community member, I strongly feel that for our children's sake, we, as a community, need to increase our own awareness about abuse issues and support our children to our fullest potential! It is through this awareness and community support that we, as a tribal entity, can bring forth effective, healthy healing for the many children who become victims of child sexual abuse.

Although healing is an essential part of our community commitment, it will be through effective treatment and prevention that our children will be able to live healthier, safe lives on our reservation.

I wish to encourage and support all those community members and professionals who deal directly with victims to keep up the good work. It is my hope that we begin the New Year with healthier goals regarding our children. They are our future.

Sincerely,
 Carolyn A. Strong
