

Small animal zoo comes to students

Goose and goslings attract the attention Bryson Sutterlee.

Dino Jones holds bottle for kid (goat) as Dustin Seyler holds the leash.

Very mellow horse enjoys attention from Paul Miller who stopped at the Zoo with his mother Alexandria Miller.

Children in the Early Childhood Development Program continued their education on the parking lot of the Warm Springs Community Center during Zoo Day, Monday May 13. They had the opportunity to observe animals in close proximity and even touch and ride some.

Zoo Day is held annually says Early Childhood Development Program parent/health coordinator John Nettleton. Children are introduced to animals in the classroom through stories and with ant farms and guinea pigs before their experience is expanded with the Zoo Day activity.

Sophie Earl gets a close look at a pair of rats.