Howlak Tichum

Walter Heath, Jr.

Forty-year-old tribal member Walter Larry Heath, Jr. died of cancer Wednesday, August 21, 1991 at his residence in Warm Springs. He was born February 11, 1951 to Walter and Ellen (Starr) Heath, Sr.

Heath was self-employed as a commercial fisherman. He fished all his life at Sherars Bridge. He attended Warm Springs and Madras school. He enjoyed football and played while a student in high school. He enjoyed hunting and making fishing nets.

Dressing ceremonies were conducted at the Simnasho Longhouse Thursday, August 22. Officiating were Sam Starr and Richard Tohet. Overnight ceremonies were held at the Longhouse with burial Friday, August 23 at the Simnasho Cemetery.

He is survived by three brothers, William and Kirby Heath and Sam Starr and two sisters, Stephanie Heath and Sharon Crookedarm. Numerous nieces and nephews also survive.

Preceding him in death were his father, who died September 28, 1975; his mother, who died June 11, 1988; his brothers Eldred Heath, who died March 23, 1958, and Evans Heath who died March 12, 1949; and sisters Delores Heath, who died December 13, 1973, and Sharon Heath, who died February 28, 1949.

Ellen Squiemphen

Eighty-four-year old Ellen Squiemphen died Sunday, August 11, 1991 at the Mid-Columbia Medical Center in The Dalles, Oregon. She was born July 1, 1907 in Warm Springs to Willie and Martha (Jake) Greeley. She was an enrolled member of the Confederated Tribes of Warm Springs.

She was one of the oldest living tribal members. She was a member of the Feather religion and a Washat elder as well as an elder at the Simnasho Longhouse. Squiemphen lived a traditional life and was one of the last traditional sacred burial garment makers. She served her people as a ceremonial food gatherer. She was a ranch wife who loved all animals, and was one of the last and eldest of the Wanapam Tribe. Squiemphen was a niece to Frank Sohapp.

Other interests included traditional drying of fish and meat, working as a cattle ride cook, cooking for the Huckleberry Feast and teaching the Indian language to the Head Start program staff and children.

She married Sam Squiemphen in January, 1925.

Dressing ceremonies, conducted by Louise Hellon were held Monday, August 12 at Simnasho Longhouse. Overnight services, conducted by Pierson Mitchell and Wilson Wewa, Jr., were held in Simnasho. Burial was held at sunrise Tuesday, August 13 at the Simnasho Cemetery.

She is survived by her daughters Luella Jackson of Warm Springs, Susie Slockish of The Dalles and her son Earl Squiemphen of Warm Springs. Also surviving are numerous grandchildren, great-grandchildren, nieces and nephews.

She was preceded in death by her father December 8, 1920, her mother on August 28, 1911 and her husband on August 30, 1968.

Wynter Falling Star Stormbringer

Three-year-old Wynter Falling Star Stormbringer passed away Thursday, August 8 at the Warm Springs Indian Health Services clinic. The cause of death is unknown and an investigation is being conducted.

Wynter was an enrolled member of the Confederated Tribes of Warm Springs. She was born April 2, 1988 in Madras to Tyree Stormbringer and Cecelia Winishut. She lived in Warm Springs with her foster mother, Crystal Winishut.

Dressing ceremonies were held Saturday, August 10, 1991 at Bel-Air Funeral Home and were conducted by Caroline Tohet. Prayer services followed and were officiated by Pierson Mitchell. Burial was the same day at Tenino Cemetery.

Survivors include her parents, her father, mother, six brothers Remo J., Kodiak C., Lance, Talon Tyree, Shard and Tearle L. Stormbringer; three sisters, Serina, Sonya and Loren Stormbringer; and grandparents Earl Tufti, Dalles Winishut, Sr. and Virginia Mitchell. All are residents of Warm Springs. Wynter was preceded in death by her grandmother, Letha Governor Tufti, in 1972.

Antonio A. Aguilar

Enrolled member of the Confederated Tribes of Warm Springs, Antonio A. "Tony" Aguilar, age 33, died Monday, August 12, due to a drowning at Lake Billy Chinook near Round Butte Dam. Aguilar was born August 8, 1958 in Redmond to George and Ella (Kurip) Aguilar, Sr. He was a lifetime resident of Warm Springs. He grew up at Kah-Nee-Ta while living with his great aunt and uncle, Dorothy and Joe Wally.

He attended schools in both Warm Springs and Madras and in 1974 he went to Phoenix, Arizona until he went to Missoula Montana and joined the "Kicking Horse Job Corp Center" where he acquired building construction skills. He enjoyed hunting and boating and was an avid motorcyclist and swimmer. He loved being around his friends. Between 1977 and 1983 he was self-employed as a reforestation contractor. He worked with his father on several construction assignments while at the same time working as a commercial crayfisherman.

Services were held Tuesday, August 13 at Bel-Air Colonial Funeral Home with Merle Williams, Sr. of LaConner, Washington officiating. Burial ceremonies were held Wednesday, August 14 at the Agency Cemetery in Warm Springs.

Surviving him are his parents, his daughter, Jeralyn D. Suppah, his brother, Easton, Ralph and George Aguilar, Jr. and a sister, Rebekah Aguilar. Also surviving is his great aunt, Dorothy Wally and numerous nieces and nephews and friends.
