"So long as we are under the illusion that we know best what is good for the earth and for ourselves, then we will continue our present course, with its devastating consequences on the entire earth community....We need not a human answer to an earth problem, but an earth answer to an earth problem....We need only listen to what the earth is telling us....The time has come when we will listen, or we will die."

Wellness Team plans community activities

To the editor:

October 27 to November 1 the Senior Wellness Conference was held at Seaside. Our Seniors came home with the first prize for nametags and the most noticeable and another prize that took Margarets breath away.

Lucinda Green, our leader from the community center groomed and practiced the Seniors for stairsteps exercise in neon pink outfits. Blinding and noticeable indeed with sequined feathers and all. A week of bran, veggies, and fruit gave an abundance of energy for aerobics, morning walks and workshops. Trips to the bathroom were also essential. "Most noticeable", was due to the nice clothes donated by the garment factory, Inter-tribal sports, Kah-Nee-Ta, and Olsen's Saddlery. Many inquires were made for an address to order from. It may be that we were the only Indians there were also. Our Indian time to meals also may have been a factor. We were noticed.

The name tags were one moccasin which went with the theme of "Walk on the well side, one step at a time". The team also entered an I.D. tag, a moccasin on a map of the Reservation.

The awards night was the evening of Halloween. The awards required a march to the podium of one blonde with big boobs, one witch, a baby, and a flat chested multicolored haired lady with blue eyelashes. The missing team member had no recourse but to claim her partners.

Friday, speaker Margarita Suarez with an inspiring keynote address sent our Seniors home. This last day brought a last prize for the air Margaret blew into two balloons and caused the men to act very strange. The largest boobs award.

The Senior Wellness Team has made some action plans that they will be doing in the community. Such as Health and Promotion activities, that will be of benefit to the whole community of all ages. Thanks again to the people that made it possible for this team to travel to this special conference.

arelated compound, permethrin. It used to be available only by prescription, but has recently been approved for over-the-counter use.

Two other insecticidal products are available only by prescription. Kwell and Kwidane contain lindane, while Ovide contains malathion. These lotions are also effective at killing lice.

The challenge is preventing reinfestation. None of the available products reliably kills every nit. Although malathion and permethrin are supposed to persist on the hair shaft and affect nymphs as they emerge, removing the nits is a wise public health precaution.

This is not a simple task. Nits are "cemented" to hair and are difficult to remove even with a fine-toothed comb. Christine's mother spent hours combing her daughter's long, fine hair while Christine complained about the pulling. A solution of half white vinegar, and half rubbing alcohol may loosen the cement and make this task a little easier.

Any clothing, pillowcases or sheets should be washed in hot water and dried at high temperature. Combs and brushes should be washed in very hot water for at least ten minutes. Stuffed animals, headphones and other items that cannot be washed, dry-cleaned or boiled, should be isolated in plastic bags for at least two weeks.

Parent-teacher conferences

A parent-teacher conference is a chance for parents and teachers to meet in person to discuss a student's education. Discussed at the conference will be a student's ability to do school work, his/her current level of reading, language and math, and special interests.

Before attending the conference parents should write down questions to ask being as specific as possible; 2. Consider making a list for the teacher of things that will help create a better understanding of the student, for example, family interests and special problems; 3. Ask student if he/she has questions; 4. Attend the conference with both parents if possible; 5. Plan to leave brothers or sisters at home; 6. If parent's schedule is difficult, check with school about arranging a special time for the conference. 7. If parents cannot attend the conference as scheduled be sure to notify the teacher.

At the meeting: 1. Arrive promptly because the teacher will have other appointments scheduled; 2. Ask what you can do at home to help in your child's learning; 3. If you have a specific point to discuss or have a complaint, listen to the teacher's point of view before criticizing. 4. Leave promptly to allow other parents to use their scheduled time.

At home: 1. Jot down important points that were discussed. Review them with your student; 2. Check back with the teacher in a few weeks to discuss your student's progress; 3. Praise your child about something discussed at the conference. Let them know you are proud of them; 4. Be positive. The better your child feels about himself/herself the better they will do.
