On Patrol

Dial 911 or 553-1171
If you are calling the police department after 5 p.m. expecting someone to answer the phone at 553-3272 or 553-3273, be aware that these two numbers are ringing directly into the Police Administration area. After 5 p.m., the main offices are closed, with the exception of investigators who are working late. Unless they hear the phone from their office or know that someone may be calling, your call might not be answered. Police Administration is currently looking into ways to help improve the telephone system to avoid further confusion and provide better service to the community. If police, fire or medical services are needed, the following numbers should be used:
Emergency, Dial 911
Non-Emergency business after 5 p.m., Dial 553-1171.

The Truth About Alcohol:
How many times have you hear, it's only beer. Okay, I'll only have one...right after the other. The next time someone tells you it's only beer, think about these facts:

1.) A can of beer contains the same amount of alcohol as a shot of whiskey.
2.) If one of your parents is an alcoholic, your risk of developing alcoholism is four times greater.
3.) Alcohol plays a major role in campus-related problems including: 69% of damage to residence halls, 64% of violent behavior on campus, 34% of academic problems and 25% of dropouts.
4.) Drinking and driving is the leading cause of death for young people.
5.) Health conscious? Virtually every organ system in the body is damaged by alcohol.

With '94 in full swing, WSPD officers are preparing to dig out those dusty jogging shoes and prepare to hit the highway in support of our Central Oregon Special Olympics Athletes.

In cooperation of this event, over 700 law enforcement personnel from around the state are preparing to cover over 1,000 miles throughout Oregon. This year's actual running is slated for May 14-20, 1994. For those of you who missed this even last year, the Central Oregon leg began at "The Museum at Warm Springs", continued to Madras, then Redmond, Sisters and then over Santiam pass into the state capitol in Salem, where Central Oregon runners joined other Willamette valley legs. Governor Roberts greeted the runners in support of local, state and federal law enforcement officers who committed themselves to helping the 5,200 athletes involved in the Oregon Special Olympics.
Traffic Ball Amounts Increased?
The last edition of the Spilyay sparked many questions aimed at the Public Safety Branch with regards to the bail amounts here on the reservation. For the record, this itemized print of the bail scheduled applies to the Oregon Revised Statutes and not to our Tribal code.

Public Safety Basketball:
After 15 games put away in the Noon Basketball Association, the Public Safety Team continues its winning ways, as our record now stands at 15 wins and 2 losses.
Correction Officer Graduates:
Public Safety is pleased to offer our congratulations to Correction Officers John "Rusty" Marcum and Dee Gunshows for completing and graduating from the Oregon Police Academy's Corrections Course which spanned over five week course.
Investigations Report:
In reviewing the past year, the Investigation division handled a total of 249 reported incidents.
Leading the classification of crimes investigated has been in the area of Child Neglect/Abuse/Sexual Abuse, where 130 cases were reviewed and acted on.
Another noticeable and serious problem was noted in the area of the property category of theft cases. A total of 50 cases were reported, of which the majority of these are still under investigation waiting further information or leads.
Of the highlighted events for the division in 1993 was a two-month drug investigation that led to the eradication of 572 marijuana plants that would have had a street value of approximately $1.1 million.

If you have information that can assist in clearing some of these theft cases or drug activity in your neighborhood, please contact Supervisory Criminal Investigator Carmen Smith at 553-3273.

Foster self-esteem in children

- 1. Speak love. Recognize talents. Don't use sarcasm or kidding to point out weaknesses. Be positive and affirming.
2. Give a hug a day (or more). Kids need to feel your love through positive physical touch—by holding hands, an arm around the shoulder or a simple hug.
3. Allow your child to contribute to the family. Expectations for chores and involvement in other family activities will enhance self-esteem. Everyone needs to feel they can make a positive difference and contribution. Research shows that this sense of contribution to family well-being can help prevent youthful substance abuse and increase family bonding.
4. Quality time is quantity time. Love is shown by something you do, so do more with your child. Turn off the TV occasionally and do something as a whole family. Eat dinner together and enjoy some conversation.
5. Put yourself in your child's place. Ask if what you've said or done is building your child up or putting your child down. Monitor your conversations with your child and see if you can identify times when you've related person to person and not just as a parent with advice or criticism.
6. Allow your child the freedom to make mistakes and learn from them. Foster the belief that mistakes are experiences to learn from rather than being defeated by.
7. Foster your child's competency. Look for areas that can build a sense of pride and encourage them.
8. Give your child choices. Children will not develop a sense of power and responsibility if other people make all their decisions for them. Even in discipline you can allow your child limited choices over what will be the consequences for misbehavior. You can ask "What are some ways that we can help you remember the rule?" The parent can then help pick one that's an appropriate consequence and when the child misbehaves, say, "I see you chose to do such and such instead of follow the rule." This reinforces the idea that we all make choices that influence when happens to us and that some of our choices of behavior can bring consequences we don't like.
