Thanks for helping with box-off

To the editor,

We want to thank everyone who was able to attend the Warm Springs Box-Off at the Kah-Nee-Ta Lodge April 2, 1994. Thanks to everyone who bought the raffle tickets and T-shirts. Thanks to all the help during the box-off such as the ticket sales at the door, Brenda Scott, Estelle Lawson and Martinez Charles for helping us out with the sales of the tickets and helping with the ring. Thank you Gordon Scott for being the announcer and Rocky Climer for keeping the record of the boxer's books and typing up the insert of the fighters. Thank Brenda Scott and her family for donating the children's bike and other items for the door prizes. Thank the Presbyterian Church for feeding some of our boxers on Sunday morning.

Thanks to all the vendors for their contributions of the door prizes: Max's Beauty Hut, Coast to Coast, Sentry's, Safeway, Subway, Intertribal Sports, Pietros, Thrifty Drug, Rogers Drug, Kah-Nee-Ta, K-Twins, Museum, Warm Springs Printing, Ben Franklin, Video Video, Grandma Hoffy's and McDonalds. Thanks to Alvis Smith, Sr. for the boxing gloves for the young boxers.

And many thanks to our only sponsors for the program Joann and Tommy Smith.

Thanks to members that were able to help out the best they could, mainly with the help putting up the boxing ring and taking it down. Thanks to Charlotte Shike and Lana Leonard for selling the T-shirts and thanks Lana for doing the sign language of the Lord's Prayer.

We didn't have time to raffle all the prizes but the lucky people that did win are Ernie Sconawah-eagle clock and the toy truck; Urbana "Toto" Ross-Indian Princess Clock, Mr. Mertz-bike, soap basket and the talking teddy bear; Joy Harvey-shawl; Dody (works at the IHS)-tapestry; Fay Pamperien-bag; and Terri Kelly-Easter Basket. We are still selling raffle tickets and they can be bought from Antoinette Pamperien.

We are hoping to have another box-off but our president cancelled it which was suppose to be in May so we really don't have nothing to look forward to but go out of town with whoever is interested.

Sincerely,
Darl Pamperien, Head Coach & Members.

Insights For Parents

Is Your Child Ready For Kindergarten?

Your child is about to turn five, and you're getting ready to register him or her for kindergarten. But is he or she ready? Some children mature more quickly than others. Entering children in school at the right time in their development increases the likelihood of their succeeding in studies and enjoying school.

Children who are ready for kindergarten: enjoy getting along with others and are able to take turns and cooperate in a group. Children ready for kindergarten are also able to enjoy unstructured play with other children and understand and observe property rights of others; are comfortable being away from parents or child-care providers for short periods; are able to stay in an activity 15 or 20 minutes and sit still for brief periods of time; are able to express themselves clearly when speaking; ask questions to get information; tell their full name, address and telephone number; tell about their experiences; and discuss stories told or TV programs viewed; can follow a short sequence of simple directions and are able to cope with minor disappointments; are able to use the toilet without assistance from others, put on their coats without help, feed themselves using fork and spoon, hop on one foot two or more times in a row, catch a large bouncing ball and run and stop on a signal; put toys away when asked; can identify some colors, familiar objects at home and sounds in their own environment, such as a dog barking or horn honking; can draw simple figures and copy a circle and square. A child ready for kindergarten also understands simple ideas, such as big and small, up and down, above and below and some number concepts, such as one hat and two crayons.

If you child exhibits most of these characteristics, he or she is probably ready for school. If he or she does not exhibit most of these characteristics, the principal of the school your child will attend can help you determine the best time for your child to start school and may also be able to offer suggestions to help your child prepare for and do well in school.

When the bus picks up or drops off children, it would be very helpful if parents would watch little ones that run out and meet the bus, they can get too close for comfort which causes a dangerous situation. Thank you for your assistance!
