SMART Program readers find enjoyment in reading to kids

Shike reads every Thursday. Here they read all the clues to find Waldo.

For the Month of March, Spilyay features SMART readers Charlotte Shike and the Salmon Corps group for their dedication to the program.

Charlotte Shike has been a reader for two years and enjoys getting out of her house and getting involved with the children. "It's fun reading to the smaller, first and second grade kids," says Shike.

She looks forward to reading every Thursday afternoon and Tuesday if she is needed

She could see the students lacking in their reading skills when she attended a youth conference with the Education Committee. Students from the Middle School were having difficulty reading directions about what they were to do. She shared with the Education Committee the lack of reading skills of these children.

In the Education Committee the issue of reading always comes up. The children often get pushed through without their reading skills and it hurts them.

"My grandchildren are all grown and read on their own. Reading is something I enjoy sharing with the kids letting them know we care too."

"I used to tell my grandkids, 'this is where you get all your work is by reading. reading allows you to follow up on your work without waiting for teacher to explain. If you can't understand, raise your hand and ask for help." Shike says she asks the children if their mom or siblings read to them at home. The children usually say no.

"Something I think about is, why our community service people don't come to the SMART Program to read the program could always use more readers.

At the end of the year the children write comments thanking the readers. "That's a pay off for us. We did something for them," Shike concludes. Salmon Corps members began reading in November as a community service to the children. They decided to try it, they enjoyed it and look forward to reading twice a week.

The Salmon Corps is a group of twelve employees and they take turns by groups to read

Their employment consists of mostly fencing and they do other jobs for the community. This week they will be at Rock Creek to help with the Elder Gathering.

Salmon Corps members interviewed were Charlie Chee, Phillip Johns, Wayne Eagle Speaker and Phil George. They offered these comments:

"Kids are getting better, I noticed a change.

"We read to the same kids most of the time.

"My little guy is doing pretty good, be reading to us pretty soon.'

"I read the same book about ten times.

They hope that the program continues and more people join and read, like the parents should start getting involved.

Sometimes they are scheduled to be somewhere else and don't always make it to the SMART Program.

Book store off to a good start

The WSE student book store has been a big draw so far. Book store hours have been expanded to accommodate students who do not have time to go to the book store before school starts. The new hours for the book store are: Monday & Thursday 8 to 8:30 a.m.; 10 to 10:30 a.m. (during recess).

Please remind your children not to bring the following items to school:

remote control cars; pogo sticks; skates; skateboards; make-up, nail polish and/or hair dyes.

So many times students want to bring in items to show to their friends or teachers and these items may be damaged. Please remind them that this may happen and that is why we discourage bringing them to school. Help your child have a positive school experience.

It is not uncommon for a student to tell a teacher, educational assistant, secretary etc. that they have been instructed not to play with a child that has headlice. Parents who are on top of this problem do not want their child continually exposed to children with chronic infestation of headlice. In some cases the student shares these instructions with the other child and friends. Like they say "children can sometimes say the cruelest things". Please check your child's head at least weekly to help prevent headlice infestation and more importantly to save your child the embarrassment of being shunned by classmates and friends.

Ms. Pedersen's class fledgling reporters!

Check out the latest edition of the Spilyay to see the full-page of the paper completed by Ms. Pedersen's second grade class. Students, with the assistance of Ms. Pedersen, Martha Gomez and the Spilyay staff, did the ground work from interviewing, photographing and getting ready to print.

Please stop by the office with letters or cards that you would like delivered to students or staff.

Answer to "Where do pets come from?"

It is reported that the following version of the Book of Genesis was discovered with the Dead Sea Scrolls. If authentic, this would shed light on the question, "Where do pets come from?

And Adam said, "Lord, when I was in the garden, you walked with me every day. Now I do not see you anymore. I am lonesome here, and it is difficult for me to remember how much you love me.

And God said, "No problem! I will create a companion for you that will be with you forever and who will be a reflection of my love for your, so that you will know that I love you even when you cannot see me. Regardless of how selfish and childish and unlovable you may be, this new companion will accept you as you are and will love you as I do-in spite of yourself."

And God created a new animal to be a companion for Adam. And it was a good animal. And God was pleased.

And the new animal was pleased to be with Adam and he wagged his tail. And Adam said, "But Lord, I already named all the animals in the kingdom and all the good names are taken. I cannot think of a name for this new animal."

And God said, "No problem! Because I have created this new animal to be a reflection of my love for you, his name will be a reflection of my own name, and you will call him DOG."

And Dog lived with Adam and was a good companion to him and loved him. And Adam was comforted. And God was pleased. And Dog was content and wagged his tail.

After a while it came to pass that Adam's guardian angel came to the Lord and said, "Lord, Adam has become filled with pride. He struts and preens like a peacock, and he believes his is worthy of adoration. Dog has indeed taught him that he is loved, but no one taught him humil-

And the Lord said, "No problem! will create for him a companion who will be with him forever and who will see him as he is. The companion will remind him of his limitations, so he will know that he is not always worthy of adoration." And God created CAT to be a companion to Adam. And Cat would not obey Adam.

And when Adam gazed into Cat's eyes, he was reminded that he was Council recently voted to recommend not the supreme being. And Adam learned humility.

And God was pleased. And Adam was greatly improved. And Cat did not care one way or

NW council to phase out law enforcement

The Northwest Power Planning that Bonneville Power Administration phase out its fish and wildlife law enforcement funding over the next 90 days. That decision will cut in half the Columbia River Inter-Tribal Fisheries Enforcement program

"We know that we have been very effective in deterring illegal fishing. In fact, all of our efforts are aimed at deterrence. A scientific evaluation of this program shows that we have been very successful," said CRITFE Captain John Johnson.

Since BPA initiated partial support for the tribal program, Johnson noted that tribal fishing arrest have dropped over 60 percent, net seizures by almost 60 percent and fish seizures by 50 percent.

"This is an incorrect decision for several reasons," he said. He pointed out that the NPPC action in effect was an improper amendment of its program. The law sets out a process that NPPC must follow before it can change its fish and wildlife program, and "the council simply ignored that process," Johnson pointed out.

"BPA funded tribal law enforcement as direct mitigation for the impact of the hydrosystem upon salmon. The CRITFE enforcement is a mainstem program. Under the Biological Opinion, the enforcement is one of the many BPA funded measures recognized for saving fish. Right now the ball is in BPA's court, and it must decide whether to accept the Council's recommendation to terminate a program it strongly supported," he said.

Through some mysterious process, the Council has determined that funding enforcement is inappropriate. It has never explained to us why or how it arrived at such a conclusion.

CRITFC policy and litigation support manager assessed NPPC's actions as diversion: "The council is grandstanding. This isn't really about making hard decisions, as Mr. Etchart says. It's about the Council avoiding the truly hard decisions it must make by law. It's about creating a smokescreen to divert attention away from the Council's failure to consider adopting its own scientific report, Return to the River, as a framework for its fish and wildlife plan.'

Lothrop added that NPPC's decision ripens an opportunity to exer-cise a dispute resolution option contained in the Memorandum of Agreement on BPA's budget. "The council has made an ill-conceived decision. But at least they have made one. It looks as though this issue likely will be elevated to the Council on Environmental quality and office of management and budget, the agencies charged with dispute resolution under the BPA Budget Memorandum of Agreement."
