To the editor,

Hello from Pastor Rick. I heard a story the other day. Late one moon lit night. I was walking down the sidewalk. There was a light smoke in the air. I suddenly felt something amiss. I looked over my shoulder to see is anyone was behind me. Off at a distance, I thought I saw something or someone also on the same sidewalk going in my direction. I turned my head back and quickened my pace just a bit. After a moment, I looked again over my shoulder and saw that it was a not a someone behind me. but a something, a tall box shape, making a bumping sound coming down the sidewalk toward my home. Over my shoulder again and I saw that the box shape had gained distance on me and was now clearly to be seen as a coffin bumping and jumping down the sidewalk towards me. I was suddenly overcome with a wave of fear that put great speed into my feet as I ran down the sidewalk towards my home. All the while the sound of the coffin bumping down the sidewalk getting closer to me. I got to my front door and closed it behind me with the coffin at my steps. In a moments the coffin came crashing through the front door of Jesus is there to help us make good choices I ran up the stairs to my bedroom with the coffin right behind me. I slammed my bedroom door shut with the coffin what seemed the same moment crashing through my bedroom door. I jumped across my bed and ran into my bathroom slamming the bathroom door shut. The coffin burst through the bathroom door with pieces flying everywhere. I reached into the medicine cabinet and grabbed

> I threw the bottle at the coffin, suddenly the coughing I had stopped. Now, your decision is the choice between calling this a dumb story, or telling all of us that in order to make big bad things in life stop, change, or go away, we must begin with the first small decision in our life to make it so. The Good News is that Jesus is there to help us make good choices. When life has our backs up against the wall Jesus will in love put the bottle into our hand. And in Faith all we have to do is throw it.

Important library vote on May 16th

Funding for the Jefferson County Library has reached a crisis level. Jefferson Country voters will have a chance to remedy the situation on May 16 when they vote on a new library district. Library supporters say this is the most responsible long-term solution to the problem.

To realize the seriousness of the problem, consider that the Jefferson County Library has a current budget of $133,300 while Crook County has budgeted $505,000 for its new library operation. The Jefferson County Library is operating on a budget of about $7.68 a year per person in the county. In comparison, the State of Oregon average for libraries is $24.25 per person. A temporary $50,000 grant from the state is contributing substantially to the library is viability over the next year. However, the grant expires in the middle of next year. Without the grant, the library will face grave challenges.

The library director is the only full time employees don't work full-time and do not receive benefits. Volunteers play an important part in helping the library be a viable operation. Due to funding problems, the library had to reduce the hours of operation by 8 percent in

Sandra Jackson, a Warm Springs resident serving on the Library Association, explained that the library operating levy for Bend is 55 cents per $1,000. "The proposed levy for Jefferson County is fairly low, pro-viding for a modest budget, "Jackson said. "Supporters of the Jefferson County Library are proposing a dis-trict with a rate of 43 cents per $1,000 of assessed property value. The levy would provide around $348,5000 for library operations.

The proposed library district in-cludes the 509-J and the Culver school districts. The proposed district covers most of Jefferson County with the exception of a large section of Crooked River Ranch.

With voter approval, the new li-brary district would provide a number of services. Sandra Jackson said, In the past, because of budget restrictions-the library has not been able to go outside the building for services. Now there are funds set aside for outreach programs for Warm Springs and Culver." Jackson continued, "There would be book drops, and a children's librarian will travel to locations for story times." When asked how she got involved with the library board, Sandra said she became involved through her friendship with several ladies on the board."When Rebecca Hendrickson left, she recommended me to fill her position on the board." Jackson is the first person from Warm Springs ever appointed to the library board.

The Jefferson County library serves people in many different ways. The library brings entertainment such as musical performances and talks by authors. The library circulates thousands of books each year. Many different groups and boards use their meeting room, free of charge. The library also offers the popular children's reading program, Spanish story time, and access to the internet along with computer services.

If the levy passes, a library district board of directors will be elected at the same time. Sandra Jackson is one of six people running for the five positions. The top five vote getters will be elected. Sandra Jackson is the wife of the Confederated Tribes Secretary-Treasurer, Charles Jackson. She is a self-employed consultant. Others running for the board includes Marie Glenn, an educational assistant at the middle school, Stephen Hillis, a teacher at Madras High School. Janice Alexander, a teacher at Warm Springs and Madras, Susan Stovall, a dance instructor at High Desert Dance Studio, and Leslie Weigand. Of the six candidates, only Stephen Hillis is not a member of the Jefferson County Library Association Board of Directors.

Sandra Jackson urges everyone to vote yes when they mail in their ballots. "A library is an important part of any community, and with Warm Springs not having its own library, it is even more important for us to get this levy passed." Sandra says it is important to keep a representative from Warm Springs on the board and she would appreciate your support when you vote.
