Poem shared

2 lives were lost to sickness
And to me they left with the quickness
But, they both were my aunts and they both made my laugh as tho they were the "Funnies," They were Great Proud Women who lived here in Warm Springs who brought Love & Happiness
They taught some well
But, what we learned you couldn't sell,
The teaching came from God himself!
And they were ready to take that Glorious long walk with him home.
The Great Spirit said once "I left so you could find your way back to me, with our Heavenly Father, who awaits our return onto him. Bless them and their families, with Love and Respect A Niece,
Lizabeth Ann

Kah-Nee-Ta to host Culture-based Curriculum Development Workshop

This workshop will focus on teaching the "process" of curriculum development. Following this workshop, participants will be able to take this process back to their local programs, schools, bands, and tribes to establish cultural curriculum teams in their local areas. Culture-based curriculum should permeate the classroom throughout the school year. The contributions that native people have made and continue to make are of vital importance and value and must be addressed as an integral aspect of the school year.

Join us July 10-13, 2000 in Portland, Oregon as we focus on curriculum development in all subject areas, such as math, science, language arts, speech, art, social studies, history, etc. In recent years, Indian tribes, bands, and nations have increasingly recognized the need to have a written legacy to pass to future generations. Participants are encouraged to develop lessons in the subject matters of their choice as we continue our work in developing culturally relevant curriculum.

Prospective participants for this workshop will be: native and non-native educators, parent committees, tribal/band members, school board members, language teachers, directors of projects, administrators, and many other interested individuals.

The cultural relevancy for this workshop must come from each of the participants as they share their traditional and personal stories and expertise. In order to produce culture-based curriculum lessons during the week, it is very important that participants remember to bring their own cultural reference materials such as:

- tribal stories, myths and legends
- artwork that illustrates how past generations lived
- traditional artwork with cultural aspects of their respective areas
- additional cultural materials in the form of articles, books, interviews on tape, video tapes, historic/cultural information, illustrations, curriculum guides, etc.

be held during the workshop which will give participants the opportunity to exchange cultural program information and ideas. If you would like to share your program with other participants, please bring displays, language curriculum guides, and materials that you have developed. Please join us as workshop presenters and participants get to know each other. As an added feature of the workshop, we will also be providing a special dinner one evening, an additional opportunity for participants to become better acquainted.

The workshop registration fee is $535 per person. You may pay when you pre-register, pay on-site at the workshop, or request the University of Oklahoma to bill your employer. Individuals billing the cost to an organization must submit a purchase order or letter of authorization either prior to the workshop or at the workshop registration desk. Checks and money orders (in U.S. funds and paid on a U.S. Bank) should be made payable to the University of Oklahoma. Visa and Mastercard are accepted.

Fathers and Daughters In his eyes, she'll always be his little princess, the light of his life.
In her eyes, he'll always be the brave warrior
he slayed the monsters in the dark, her brave, her protector.
As the years go by, her attention will turn to other handsome warriors.
One will win her hand and carry her away to another teepee, but her brave warrior will always be in her heart,
