

Live music on tap

Four bands are scheduled to play in the Appaloosa Lounge at Kah-Nee-Ta during the month of April.

Brian Hanson will kick-off April's list of live entertainment at the Warm Springs resort. Hanson's group, noted for their country/western style, will play on April 6 and 7.

The next two bands play a mix of rock and roll, classic rock and country. Double Clutch will be in the lounge April 13-14 and The Substitutes are scheduled for April 20-21.

Blues player Bobby Simms rounds out the month's line-up, taking the stage on April 27 and 28.

WSFPI gives museum money

Ralph Minnick, chief financial officer at Warm Springs Forest Products Industries (WSFPI) presents a gift of $5,000 to Rosalind Sampson, assistant development officer at the Museum at Warm Springs. Minnick said WSPFI is proud to assist an organization that contributes so much to the Warm Springs community.

Tribal officer named to be OSU advisor

Oregon State University last week announced the appointment of a 12-member advisory group for the new branch campus that is under development for Central Oregon in Bend.

Included in that group is Charles "Jody" Calica, chief operations officer for the Confederated Tribes of Warm Springs. Eight of the advisors are from Bend.

Calica, who has worked with OSU advisory boards under three college presidents, hopes that creation of the branch campus makes for more better higher education services for Warm Springs.

"My hope is that this will make educational services more responsive," Calica said. "I also look to the branch campus bringing in talent that may aid the reservation in education, economics, community development and natural resource management."

The board will play a critical role in guiding the strategic direction of the branch campus in its formative stages, said OSU President Paul Risser.

"The input of the Board of Advisors will be especially important in the early years while we're creating this new institution and have so many important decisions to make," Risser said. "We're grateful to these local residents for helping us to create a 21st century learning community in Central Oregon, and we think the institution will be well served by board members of such intellect, integrity and vision."

The new board members will include:

Bob Barber, a Bend resident and president of Central Oregon Community College

Knute Buehler, a Bend resident, OSU's first Rhodes Scholar and a local orthopedic surgeon
Calica, a Warm Springs resident and chief operating officer of the Warm Springs Tribe

Jerry Colona, a Redmond resident and superintendent of the Redmond School District

Mike Hollern, a Bend resident and chief executive officer of Brooks Resources

Mario Huerta, a Bend resident and director of Programa de Ayuda, an outreach program to the local Hispanic community

Parti Moss, a Bend resident, president and chief executive officer of the Bank of the Cascades

Stacie Pirtle, a Bend resident, 1999 OSU graduate and manager at Jeld-Wen

Mike Wax, a Bend resident, president and chief executive officer of Deschutes Medical Products

Ben Westlund, a Tumalo resident, agribusinessman and Oregon state representative

Carolyn Platt, a Bend resident and member of the Bend-LaPine School Board

Karen Kramer, alcohol and drug program manager for Crook County Mental Health Department
"Many of these board members have already been working with us for years to help bring improved higher education programs to Central Oregon," said Linda Johnson, who is directing community relations and administration at the new campus. "We have no doubt that these are the right people to help us take the branch campus from a vision to a working reality, and ensure that it delivers the programs and services that Central Oregonians really want and need."

The board members were appointed by Risser in consultation with Joe Cox, chancellor of the Oregon University System, with an effort to reflect the range of interests, values and viewpoints in Central Oregon.

Board members ordinarily will serve three year terms, which can be renewed once. However, the first group of board members has initial terms of staggered length to ensure continuity as membership changes over the years.

The board will meet bi-monthly during the first year and select its own officers, which will include a chair, vice chair and secretary.

The board is designed to provide general advice on the education, research and public service programs of the new branch campus, as well as the administrative, fiscal, student service and promotional functions.

The mandate of responsibility given to the board will include:

Ensure that the university leadership continues to understand the current and future higher education needs of Central Oregon.

Assist in obtaining the necessary public and private support necessary for the branch campus to succeed.

Recommend to the OSU president the person to be named as campus executive officer and provide ongoing consultations about any changes in leadership.

Provide advice and guidance to the campus executive officer on all major strategic decisions, and do an annual performance evaluation of the CEO.

Review the annual budget of the branch campus with an emphasis on general programmatic directions and policies.

Conduct an annual review of the education, research and public service programs of the branch campus, working to ensure that their content and modes of delivery are consistent with the needs of Central Oregonians.

The work of the board will begin immediately, university officials say.

One of the next major hurdles for development of the branch campus is approval of funding by the Oregon legislature.

Many efforts are already underway, however, to develop educational programs, courses, and student services so the campus can begin operation in fall term, 2001.

Can you identify this amazing duo of yesteryear? (Hint: Today one of the two is involved in everybody's business!)

Call us between 10am and noon on Friday, April 13. The first person with the correct answer will win a one year subscription to Spilyay for himself or a friend. The answer and winner's name will appear in the following week's issue.

For future contests, drop off or mail photos of tribal members (when they were 10 years old or younger) who are currently living on or employed by the reservation.

Week of Young Child highlights safety need

Week of the Young Child Highlights Needs of Young Children in Warm Springs

A Fundamental Need of Children: To Feel Safe

Warm Springs, Oregon, March 26, 2001 - Warm Springs Early Childhood Education is sponsoring events to celebrate the Week of the Young Child, April 1-7. The Week of the Young Child highlights the importance of families, early childhood professionals, and communities working together to support every child's healthy development and early learning. "This year's celebration will focus on violence prevention for children, their families and our community" said Julie Quaid, Director of Essential Education for the Confederated Tribes of Warm Springs. "Children exposed to violent conditions have their healthy development jeopardized."

Tragically, every day children in America witness violent acts or are victims of abuse, neglect, or personal assault in their homes or communities. Marian Wright Edelman (1993) states, "[We] Adults have failed dismally in our most basic responsibility - to protect our society's children from violence." The national Association for the Education of Young Children in their position statement on Violence in the Lives of Children states: "As do all sectors of society, the early childhood profession has an important role to play in breaking the cycle of violence in the lives of children." High quality early childhood programs can "promote curriculum and teaching practices that address violence prevention; teach conflict resolution, cooperative learning, and respect for diversity in all its forms; and promote positive cultural identity as a central part of the program (Carlsson-Paige & Levin, 1992)."

Warm Springs ECE offers the following activities during Week of the Young Child as an opportunity for members of the community to come together and focus the need for children to be shielded from violence in all forms:

April 5th @11:30 Information Fair at the Community Wellness Center

April 6th @10am - ECE Children's Parade

All Month - children's art work will be posted in the community

Join Early Childhood Education during Week of the Young Child (April 1st-7th) in working together to make our community a safe place.

Entrance on allotted and fee lands in which the Confederated Tribes has no interest will require a search warrant or consent from the appropriate person.

Where less restrictive means have been ineffective or are inappropriate, the general manager, in consultation with the appropriate committee, has the authority to issue a written order to correct a violation.

Violators found guilty in Warm Springs Tribal Court may have to pay damages to the Confederated Tribes to cover the cost of investigations, inspections or monitoring surveys which lead to the establishment of violations; and expenses incurred in removing, correcting, or terminating any harm to human health and the environment resulting from the violator's activity.

Violation of any compliance order by any person subject to the jurisdiction of the Warm Springs Tribal Court will be punishable by a fine not to exceed $5,000 for each day that such violation continues. The Warm Springs Tribal Court will weigh circumstances relating to each violation before determining the appropriate fine.

Any person subject to the criminal jurisdiction of the Warm Springs Tribal Court who knowingly violates any compliance order issued pursuant to WSTC 200.823 will be deemed guilty of Knowing Violation of Compliance Order, and, upon conviction, may be punished by a fine not to exceed $5,000 or by imprisonment for a period not to exceed one year, or by both such fine and imprisonment.
