Veterans' Corner

On June 6, 1944, the invasion of Normandy was the start of the end of World War II. D-Day took place some 57 years ago, when the Allied forces made that historic landing at Normandy. The names like Utah, Sward, Omaha, Red beaches ring a bell for all the old Vets. The day the troops landed to start the big push toward defeating the German army.

Today everyone really doesn't realize what the troops went through as they stormed the beaches of Normandy, where thousands of lives were lost hitting the beach.

As records indicate on June 6, 1944, 175,000 men took part in the invasion. Paratroopers were dropped behind the enemy lines to cut off supply lines to the German army. The German troops were well fortified as they prepared for an invasion such as this. They expected an operation like this and built cement bunkers and walls covered with barbed wire, to hamper troops who were invading their land.

They were well prepared building obstacles on the shore and in the water to damage landing craft and boats that may come to the shore.

With all the shelling from the war ships, bombs from aircraft, air strafing, it took a lot of time for the Allied Forces to really get a good foothold on the shore. Like it was said, the Germans had plenty of time to prepare for such an invasion, building cement bunkers and high walls and a lot of barbed wire, where they were well prepared and well fortified which made it more difficult for the Allied forces to get a good hold of the shore.

Even though the boys knew the odds were against them, that they may be killed, they went forth to face the well fortified German army. Casualties mounted into the thousands the first day of the operation.

On the home front it was just as scary as families kept their eyes on the casualty lists that were printed in the newspaper each day, and dreaded to see a telegram delivered to their door, of their son being killed in action.

Today there are just a handful of old veterans who can recall those days and to some it's hard to look back and remember friends who died during that time.

A lot of veterans would rather not talk about their experiences during war-time. This builds up tension and causes physical problems for many men and women who have served their country during that big World War.

In today's movies everything is glorified for the star and doesn't give everything near the real story of D-Day and all the hardships, setbacks and suffering the troops went through.

The veterans went through a lot and thought of as "Hell," but survived. Today, they say, "When you see a veteran, shake his hand," for what he has done for our freedom we have today.
