A dream of 25 years became a reality when a new shop opened on June 1 at the Warm Springs Plaza. Tribal member Eraina Palmer owns the Quilts and More shop. Her doors opened to the public at 10 a.m. with refreshments being served.

Ms. Palmer had dreams of one day opening her own shop since the time when she first became an avid quilt maker. She took her first quilting class from Dorothy Zimmerman 30 years ago. A basic log cabin quilt was what she learned, and she was hooked on sewing since then. Eraina began "quilt in a day" classes in 1990 and is proud to say she has several successful students. Kate Jackson, Sheila Wahnetah-Clements, Angie Selam-Smith and her daughter Kelli Picard are a few to name.

Class schedules are yet to be determined. There will be classes for the Beginner, Intermediate and the Advanced. The age limit is 12 years old on up. The classes will be taught according to interest of the style of quilt. There are several styles she passed on to her students throughout the last 12 years. The star quilt is very popular; quillows (a quilt that folds into a pillow) of three

Smith recognized for patient care

Jennie Smith, Family Nurse Practitioner at the Warm Springs Health and Wellness Center, has received prestigious recognition in the field of health care.

She received the Indian Health Services Advanced Practice Nurse of the Year Award. The award, presented June 12 during a conference in Montana, is from the IHS National Council of Nurse Administrators.

Smith is a nurse practitioner with the Model Diabetes Program, and has been employed at the Warm Springs clinic since 1992.

She is a Certified Diabetes Educator (CDC), and has completed an epidemiology course through the CDC Public Training Program.

Smith was honored for her numerous contributions to the health status of the diabetic population, which includes implementing methods of treatment, patient "plans of care," drug registries, and a clinic-wide diabetes screening program.

Smith treats patients holistically, recognizing and acknowledging the social, psychological and cultural components that affect diabetes. She incorporates these factors into her treatment of patients.

"I have a strong belief in the patient's ability to make lifestyle changes," Smith said. She is readily available to give her patients encouragement to make the changes that will result in positive outcomes.

She was nominated for the IHS Advanced Practice Nurse of the Year Award by her supervisor Diana Howell. In explaining why she nominated Smith, Howell said:

"Jennie's outstanding patient care and activities with the Diabetes Program reflect her commitment to improve the health of the people."

Smith said her favorite part of her job is the people for whom she provides care.
