

The Tribal Census begins the week of Oct. 6

Fred and Olivia Wallulatam, with their granddaughter Taya, know the importance of the tribal census.

“An accurate census count will benefit the Confederated Tribes, and each and every tribal member.”

Beginning the week of Oct. 6, tribal households will be hearing from census takers. The contact from the census takers will be by telephone, or in person.

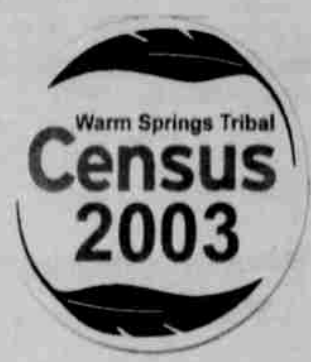

The Confederated Tribes of Warm Springs will be conducting the 2003 Tribal Census beginning the week of Oct. 6. The U.S. Census of 2000 significantly under counted Warm Springs, and it is critical to future planning to get an accurate count.

The U.S. Census determines billions of dollars of federal funding and Congressional representation.

The 2003 Census will seek to interview not only Warm Springs tribal members but also those living in the community who are not enrolled.

Census information is confidential; it is safe, good for the community, and okay to participate in. Be part of the 2003 Warm Springs Tribal Census.

Sponsors of the Tribal Census are:

The Confederated Tribes of Warm Springs
The Administration for Native Americans
Warm Springs Forest Products Industries
Warm Springs Power Enterprises

Warm Springs Composite Products
Indian Health Services
Warm Springs Ventures
Warm Springs Community Health Promotions

Kickoff event for the Tribal Census is set for 5 p.m., Thursday, Oct. 9, at the Museum at Warm Springs. Door prizes and meal provided. Introduction of the Census Team.
