Iqwstumisha Qaqanaiwit anakuł Łkw'l Telling Time

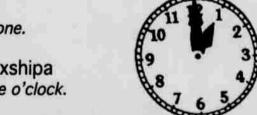

Before the clock was invented our people used time in a different way. Time was kept track of by location of the sun during the day. So it was morning time, daytime, evening time, night time. Examples: It is now middle of morning, or it is almost lunch time. It is now passing lunch time. It is now nearing evening, and so forth.

When the clock was invented, our people did make language for the clock numbers as it is used to tell time today. Our people named it,"Klaak".

You will notice the different language sound using numbers to tell time on the clock.

Naxsh Number one.

> Naxshipa One o'clock.

Putmt ku naxsh Number eleven.

Putmt ku naxshipa Eleven o'clock.

> lwa maicqi. It is morning.
