Outscoring the Little Springers of Warm Springs, 6-5, over the final four innings played on a Sunday morning, the Warm Springs Lil Bucks won their first-round game of the Pi-Ume-Sha 12-and-under baseball tournament.

That game would be the Lil Bucks' most difficult game, as they would beat a team from the Lummi Indian Reservation, 19-0, and the Springers, 11-0, in five innings, to win the championship of the five-team tournament.

The All-Nations team, from the Lummi and Tacoma tribes in Washington, won the nine-team co-ed softball tournament during Pi-Ume-Sha, while two local teams also placed.

The Kah-Nee-Ta/De team, coached by Owen Danzuka Jr., was second, while the Reds, coached by Shawn Harry, was third in the nine-team tournament.

The Warm Springs teams had played eight innings in their first meeting in the afternoon June 25. The Lil Bucks thought they had won, 3-2, but the Springers' scorebook showed a 3-3.

The Springers were the home team for that game, so its scorebook prevailed and forced the teams to start the ninth inning at 9 a.m. June 26.

The Lil Bucks had seven straight hits in the final inning to score enough to take the win.

In the championship game, Spencer Ellsbury and Eddie Jones each had three hits for the Lil Bucks. Ellsbury was a triple short of hitting for the cycle, hitting a home run in the fourth Lummi, from the Bellingham, Wash., area, finished third in the tournament. The Family Affair team of Warm Springs and a team from the Sauk-Suiattle tribe also competed.

Fans enjoy Treaty Days boxing

This year at the Pi-Ume-Sha boxing tournament, boxers from Oregon and Washington and boxing fans from all over gathered at the Community Center gymnasium.

This year the bleachers were packed with more than 200 people. Ever since the Pi-Ume-Sha tournament started in 2002, the gym has been packed with people anxious to see the fights.

At the start of the tournament, Midge Courter, stood and took the microphone and sang the National Anthem. Alvis Smith Sr. and Evans Spino then sang a Washat song, followed by a prayer from Buck Smith.

During the event there were 17 matches. Three Warm Springs tribal members competed: Jamie Holliday, and Leander and Johnny Smith. They had one win and two losses.

After all the matches were done, the Best Fight of the Night Award went to Josue Lopez and Russell Basey. The Most Inspirational Fight went to Smith's son Johnny Boxing coach Austin Smith said the boxers might next go to the Fallon Treaty Days tournament in Nevada, July 16-17. They may also go to Yakima in October.

Andy Leonard, the recreational coordinator, later presented Dr. Fuller of Portland with a Pendleton jacket for his participation in the tournament. The doctors don't charge for their time.

Boxing official Trevor Louis and his team also volunteered their time. Austin Greene made the contribution of providing use of the announcement equipment, and Bobby Eagleheart helped set up and announce the games.

The tribal Education Committee made a generous donation of cash, used for the trophies and awards.

Boxing action at Pi-Ume-Sha.

The Treaty Day Boxing was a success, and the fighters were fairly matched. Still there is a lot of worked involved. "It kind of stress me out sometimes," said

Coach Smith. Smith said he would like to thank everyone who attended and supported the event. (Pi-Ume-Sha boxing results in the next Spilyay.)

LeClaire wins endurance race

David LeClaire Jr. won the nearly 14-mile Memorial Endurance Horse Race, as part of the Pi-Ume-Sha Celebration, June 25. LeClaire, 17, won the race in 42 minutes, 51 seconds, and earned $1,300 for his efforts.

Raymond Lowes won the Junior Division race for riders 15 and under, of about five miles, riding in 20 minutes. Lowes won $550 for winning.

Harrison Buller was second, in 22 minutes, while Ahlyyah Hisatake was third, in one hour, seven minutes. Buller won $150, and Hisatake earned $100, for placing. A total of 10 junior racers entered the race, while six competed in the senior division.

Culture Camp this month

There may still be time for young people to register for the 4-H Culture Enrichment summer camp. The camp will be at Peter's Pasture beginning July 17. Registration and detailed information are available at the OSU Extension Office in the Education Building.

For additional information call Kimberly or Minnie at the OSU Extension Office, 553-3238. The 4-H Cultural Enrichment Camp is open to girls and boys grades four through seven.

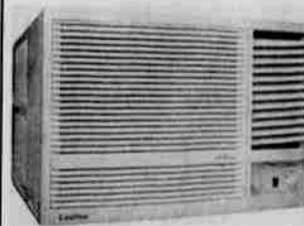

In other news regarding the camp:

Youth can earn money and have a fun time by being a youth counselor at the camp. Men and women 18 years and older are welcome to apply. A criminal background check is required.

Salary depends on the job and the days worked. Contact Kimberley or Minnie at OSU Extension at 553-3238 for information.
