Gathering for youth at HeHe

The Healing the Wounded Spirits of Youth gathering will be Sunday through Friday, June 17-22 at HeHe.

Scheduled speakers are Tom Ball, of the Klamath Tribes, who is a professor at the University of Oregon; and his wife, professor Alison Ball, of the Colville tribe.

Another speaker will be

Clayton Small, Northern Cheyenne, who has developed a curriculum called Native Hope.

A part of the Healing the Wounded Spirits of Youth gathering is to raise awareness of suicide prevention strategies. But the overall approach is toward identifying and developing leadership among the youth of the community, said Charlotte Herkshan, event coordinator.

Youth and adults who participate are charged no fee. They bring their own teepee or tent, bedding and clothes. All the food is provided.

For information call Herkshan at the Community Counseling Center at 553-3205.

Training offered in suicide prevention

There will be an Applied Suicide Intervention Skills Training session from 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. this Thursday and Friday, June 7-8 at the Warm Springs Community Wellness Center.

Applied Suicide Intervention Training (ASIST) is a two-day interactive workshop that trains individuals and community providers in suicide intervention.

For information, or to register, please call the Community Counseling Center at 553-2305.
