

Elementary school welcomes new teacher

Haley Brownson is preparing to join the team of teachers at Warm Springs Elementary School this year.

As she prepares her classroom, Brownson said, "I'm so excited!"

"I can't wait to get going with all the kids," Brownson added.

She will be teaching first grade at Warm Springs Elementary. This is Brownson's first teaching job.

Brownson grew up in Myrtle Creek, Ore., and attended Umpqua Community College for her associate's degree before attending Northwest Christian College.

She chose to work with elementary school students in part because of her relationship with her young niece and nephew.

"They are my biggest influences in life," she said. "I got to experience a lot with their growing up."

Plus, Brownson added, "I have always worked really well with little kids."

Brownson was hired for the job after attending a Portland job fair. Though she's from south-eastern Oregon and hasn't traveled extensively in Central Oregon, she said, she remembers traveling to Kah-Nee-Ta as a child and going horseback riding with her family.
