2 compete at Vancouver; Nevada bouts next

The Warm Springs Nation Boxing Club traveled last weekend to Vancouver for a boxing tournament.

Two boxers from the Warm Springs team competed in the tournament, held at the Hudson Bay High School.

In bout number eight Arthur Mitchell represented the Warm Springs Boxing Nation in the 141-pound division. He boxed Josh Afemata of the Oregon Fisticuffs Boxing Club. Going into the bout, Mitchell had a record of 0-0, and Afemata had a record of 0-1.

They boxed three 2-minute rounds. "It was a very close match," said Austin Smith Sr., boxing coach.

Afemata won the first round, then barely won the second round. Mitchell won the third; so Afemata won by decision.

It was the first match of Mitchell's career, and he fought a good fight, said Smith.

In bout number 11, Oits Johnson boxed Lester King. Oits record going into the bout was 0-1, and King's was 1-2.

Oits fought a good fight for the first one-and-a-half rounds, but King won by retirement, or TKO, during the round 2, said Smith.

"Both fighters did good for not having boxed in a while," he said.

There were a total of 14 matches fought during the tournament. Six clubs attended from Oregon.

Next up, the Warm Springs Nation Boxing Club will go on the road to Lovelock, Nev., this coming weekend.

Boxers slated to compete from Warm Springs are Brandon Craig, Arthur Mitchell, Leander Smith, O.J. Johnson, Oits Johnson, and Jasper Smith is tentative, depending on whether a match can be set for him.

Anyone wishing to contribute to help the team travel, please contact Versa Smith or Lois Squiemphen at the Recreation Department, 553-3243.

Visit home from war

Austin Smith Sr. wishes to thank the people who took part in the Thanksgiving Powwow, during which time recognition was given to U.S. Marine Austin Smith Jr.

Austin Smith Sr. had traveled to San Diego earlier in November to pick up his son, who was on leave from the Iraq War.

Austin Sr. said he wishes to thank Captain Moody, the drummers, and the people who danced during the Honor Song. "Semper Fi, to all the people," he said.

Scientists still seek control over ancient remains

(AP) - Scientists hoping to study the ancient skeleton known as Kennewick Man are protesting efforts on two fronts that they say could block them from examining one of the oldest and most complete ever found in North America. For the third time in four years, the scientists oppose a Senate bill that would allow federally recognized tribes to claim ancient remains even if they can't prove a link to a current tribe.

They also are contesting draft regulations issued by the Bush administration on disposing culturally unaffiliated remains. Both measures could end up with the same result, scientists say: preventing an improved understanding of North American history and the role of the continent's first inhabitants.

If adopted, the proposed changes could "result in a world heritage disaster of unprecedented proportions" and "rob our descendants of the unique insights concerning the shared heritage of all people that physical anthropological studies of culturally unidentifiable human remains can provide," the American Association of Physical Anthropologists said in a statement.

Supporters call such concerns overblown.

Students win big during Fire Prevention Week

Students at Warm Springs Elementary won multiple prizes as part of a program conducted during Fire Prevention Week.

Warm Springs Elementary won $500 and Mrs. Rodin's class won a pizza party after being chosen in a drawing.

Fifth-grade student Louis Stewart and first-grade student Jared Culps also won new bicycles as part of a local raffle.

Karla Bagley-Tias presented the prizes during an assembly last week.

The prizes are awarded after students participate in the Firebusters program during Fire Prevention Week.

Students in many schools in Central Oregon complete worksheets and learn about the dangers of fire and how to prevent it. Firebusters materials are distributed throughout schools, and students can take the worksheet home and participate with their families.

Students can find the answers to the worksheets on News Channel 21, which works in conjunction with the Central Oregon Fire Prevention Cooperative.

During fire prevention week Badgley-Tias also visits classrooms and teaches students about fire safety.

Worksheets are handed in when the program is complete. Any school that hands in 50 percent of the worksheets is eligible for a drawing to win $500, $150, or a pizza party.

According to Badgley-Tias, "We've been involved with this program for 15 years and as far as I know this is the first time we've ever won."

The Central Oregon Fire Prevention Cooperative works to conduct the program, which Badgley-Tias said means the drawing includes all the eligible schools in Central Oregon—meaning Warm Springs faced numerous competition in order to win.

Each year two students who complete the program win bicycles as part of a local raffle.

"I would like to thank Kah-Nee-Ta Resort very much because they do the donation of the bikes," Badgley-Tias said. In fact, she added, most schools only raffle off one bicycle but Kah-Nee-Ta always donates two.

The new bicycle came at an ideal time for Stewart, who said his old bicycle is broken.

"It's better than fixing mine," Stewart said.

Though he already had a bicycle, Culps said, the new one is much better and he plans to ride often.

As to why he is excited, Culps said, "Because I won it!"

home and participate with their families.

The Central Oregon Fire Prevention Cooperative is made up of all wildland and structural fire agencies within Central Oregon; this includes: the Oregon

Department of Forestry, Walker Range Fire Patrol Association, the Bureau of Indian Affairs-Warm Springs, the USDA Forest Service, the USDI Bureau of Land Management, the Office of the Oregon State Fire

Marshals, OSU Extension Service, and thirteen city and rural fire departments. National Fire Prevention Week takes place in early October.
