

Artists' work on display

Marjorie Kalama won the Judges Choice Award at the Fifteenth Annual Tribal Member Art Exhibit.

The exhibit is on display in the Changing Exhibits Gallery at the Museum of Warm Springs.

Kalama won the Judges Choice Award for her work, "My Heart and Soul," a beaded collage with feathers on a baby board.

Kalama, who works at KWSO, said the inspiration for the horse-and-man design came from her father Bobby Kalama. "He showed me this bond," she said.

"After the men and the horses I felt the need to bring Celilo alive in my work," she said.

"I thought of the birth of my new grandson Carver Kennedy, that gave me the lone gaffer along the side of the river and the grandfathers watching him."

About her beading, Kalama said, "As I tacked down every two beads, my thoughts held my great grandmother Julia Whitewolf, and great grandfather Simon Stevens who had been blind.

"Simon inspired me to use beads in the design where he may have been able to feel the design rather than see it.

"All my family from Richard Halfmoon to Gib Kalama held my imagination."

Kalama also has beaded regalia items (example at right), featuring hummingbird designs, on display at the exhibit.

The Fifteenth Annual Tribal Member Art Exhibit at the Museum of Warm Springs runs through January 5, 2009.

Personal loan applications on hold till Nov. 3

Due to a current backlog of loan requests, the Tribal Credit Enterprise will not be accepting new personal loan requests through Oct. 31. This will allow the Credit staff to take action on current applications, said Lori Fuentes, Credit manager.

Credit will resume accepting personal loan requests on November 3.

Credit will still accept applications for home loans, business loans, funeral loans and medical emergencies (life and death situations).
