

Miss Warm Springs 2010 will wear the crown and sash (above) made by Marjorie Kalama. The sewing and beadwork took about two and a half months, said Kalama. "I talked with some of the past pageant winners about what they would like to see in the crown and sash," she said. The consensus was that the crown and sash should be light in weight, which is especially helpful during the hot summer months. "Their input helped a lot in the design," said Kalama. The Miss Warm Springs Pageant is scheduled for the evening of Friday, Jan. 22 at the Agency Longhouse.

IRMP scoping meeting

Tribal Council, committee members, department managers and the public will gather next week at Kah-Nee-Ta for a scoping meeting regarding revision of the Integrated Resource Management Plan (IRMP).

Meetings are scheduled for 9 a.m.-4 p.m. on Wednesday and Thursday, Jan. 20-21.

One potential topic of discussion will be conditional uses in forested areas of the reservation, said Brigitte Whipple, tribal anthropologist.

The IRMP definition of "conditional use" and its original intent in the document are potential discussion topics, she said.

With Tribal Council, the committee members, department managers and all other interested parties are encouraged to attend the scoping meetings next week, said Whipple.

Also, she said, more meetings on the subject are likely in the near future, to be held at the Agency and Simnasho longhouses.
