

Campus Sprinkler Fun

Yvonne Iverson/Spilyay

When temperatures reached 70 degrees last week Denver Tufti-McEwen (center) and friends enjoyed the sprinklers while waiting for their bus to depart from the Campus.

Youth camp explores 'Art of the Canoe'

Tribal youth ages 14 to 19 are being encouraged to apply to participate in this year's Oregon College of Art and Craft camp.

The theme for this year's art camp will be "Art of the Canoe," August 8 to 21.

Twelve Native American teens will experience contemporary arts and craft through workshops, field trips and live performances as a part of the A. Susana Santos "Journeys in Creativity" Program.

Living on program for two weeks, students will be participating in workshops.

Topics will include wood carving, canoe model, and canoe paddle making.

Students will also experience lively group meals, movies and tours to local art museums and galleries.

This camp is free to all participating teens. Completed applications must be received by June 1, 2011. "The application process is a competitive process," Shirod Younker, Journeys Program Manager, said.

Applications may be picked up at the Museum at Warm Springs.

For more information, contact Natalie Moody or Rosalind Sampson at 541-553-3331.
