

Dangerous Decibels team reports progress

Members of the Listen for Life team recently presented a progress report of the first year of the Dangerous Decibels program to the Tribal Council.

Presenting team members included Billy Martin, Ga-Lo Vann, Genna Martin and Carol Sahme.

The team was excited to announce that both the fourth- and fifth-grade participants of last fall's program showed significant improvement in their understanding of how we hear, what sounds can be dangerous, and how we can protect our hearing in a variety of settings.

The Council was pleased by the outcome last year, and is very supportive of Carol Sahme continuing the Listen for Life community wide effort for the next few years.

Also making a debut appearance this fall will be new ear protection items for sale in the Warm Springs Market. Earplugs that will fit both children and adults, such as those demonstrated in the Listen to Life program, will be available for purchase for fifty cents a set.

The Listen for Life team is thankful to be welcomed back into the Warm Springs Community.

The team will be hosting a community night from 5:30-7:30 p.m. on Wednesday, Oct. 12 at the community center.

Dinner will be served, fourth- and fifth-graders will be presenting important information and skills about noise induced hearing loss, and there will be raffles and prizes. Everyone is invited.

MHS Alternative Education hosting open house

The Madras High School Annex-Warm Springs location has moved to a new building. They are now located in the red modular trailer by the Warm Springs Elementary School basketball court.

An Open House will be held this Wednesday, Oct. 5 from 4:30-6:30 p.m. Anyone wanting to learn more about Madras High School's Alternative Education program is welcome to stop in and visit. Gary Carlton reports, "there are 65 students enrolled in the Annex, and half are Native American students."
