Ellsbury said he was grateful to receive the award. "This is a tremendous honor," he said on his Twitter page. "Thank you to writers who voted for me, my teammates and fans."

Ellsbury plays outfield for the Boston Red Sox. This year he achieved some Red Sox firsts, hitting 30 homers and driving in 100 runs from the leadoff spot, and joining the 30-

30 club (30 homers, 30 steals) by stealing 39 bases.

Ellsbury posted career-bests in most offensive categories this season after playing just 18 games in 2010 because of injuries.
