

At the Bazaar

Shoppers were able to pick up gifts and more at this year's Last Chance Bazaar, as vendors filled the gym and the social hall at the Community Center last Wednesday.

The Annual Christmas Bazaar, started by Carol Allison many years ago, is always held on the second Saturday in December.

The event is held before tribal members receive their bonus per capita, and opposite the week of a tribal payday.

The event has become an annual tradition, and has been successful in providing local shoppers the opportunity to support our local vendors.

A variety of handmade items, jewelry, blankets, and food were available for holiday shoppers.
